LYTTELTON HARBOUR

review creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake by local Professionals Real Estate Agent Lynnette Baird, and Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre Chairperson Wendy Everingham.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community. A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed by a couple of amateurs; or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Lynnette or Wendy would love to hear from you:

Discover Urumau Reserve

An Amazing Reserve, Right on Our Back Door

Urumau Reserve, located above Foster Terrace, in Lyttelton East is part of the locally administered reserves system by the people of Lyttelton.

Named after a sacred cave that housed the bones of Maori ancestors, the reserve will be new to many residents. On Sunday as part of the TimeBank's education programme a group of six people were privy to Brian Downey's expert knowledge on the area.

Prior to the earthquakes there was a large team of local residents who assisted the Reserves Committee helping to bring this piece of land back to life. Previously well known for its "weedy nature" with the help of skilled locals they set about creating and implementing a planting programme to regenerate the area in native bush.

This trip highlighted what had been achieved since the block plantings began in 2006. An amazing amount of bush has regenerated in a very short period of time. In some places the forest was amazingly thick. Brian explained that teams of local people planted an array of native plants indigenous to this region one metre apart on designated parts of the hillside

There were several blocks where this was done. For the next couple of years, locals released and watered sections to ensure the survival of the newly planted areas. All this work ceased after the earthquakes and it's hoped that now the reserve is open again this activity will resume. Thank you to those original teams of people who got this project underway. Maybe you recognise some of them in the photo?

Our trip today highlighted that many of these areas are flourishing. In a very short period of time trees are quite tall and thick. The plantings were done purposely to ensure the growth went skyward and created a canopy for other plants to grow alongside or underneath. Brian showed us that when the trees were planted a ledge was dug around the base of the plant and then piled high with compost. This action ensured that any water would be trapped at the base of the plant to aid growth. With trees planted one metre apart this also forced growth upwards and not outwards.

Walking around, our group was treated to all sorts of interesting bits and pieces. He showed us how gorse had been used as an incubator for many of the plants. Locally it's been shown by some conservationists that gorse shelters the plants from adverse conditions and the results of that were evident here. When the native plants grow strong they end up overtaking the gorse. We visited a part of the reserve where you could see this had happened. In these instances the gorse was then dying because the natives had grown a canopy over it and had stolen its light.

"Urumau Reserve named after a sacred cave that housed the bones of Maori ancestors."

Discover Urumau Reserve

When you visit a reserve with someone who knows what they are talking about, a walk becomes a really interesting experience. We were shown that creating a natural forest is not like creating a garden. We learnt how you are really creating a micro system. Once you get the ground conditions right then not only the trees grow but the wildlife return and other organisms flourish. The amount of fungi we saw was amazing. Bird life was also flourishing. We spotted a pair of Kereru.

Brian had all sorts of interesting facts and figures. In a typical European Forest there are generally around 50 species of plants. In a Kiwi Temperate Rain Forest there are around 250 and in a Tropical Rain Forest around 350. Our New Zealand forest is very diverse and when it takes hold it's very dense and unlike any forest in other parts of the world. A healthy forest protects the landscape from erosion and instability.

Around the Banks Peninsula and in particular Lyttelton Harbour there are still places with remnant original forest. This reserve gives us the opportunity to expand our landscape with forest as it was previously. With careful seed harvesting and dedicated people we have the opportunity to bring these areas back to life.

If you need to be inspired on how to create a forest, take a trip up to the Reserve. If you are inspired to continue the vision of the Reserves team you won't have to wait a life time for your efforts to be rewarded. It was great seeing Brian's face as he discovered parts of Urumau that he hadn't seen for ages really taking hold.

With plans for more guided walks, mountain bike tracks, linkages with the Head to Head Walkway and opportunities for getting more actively involved we hope this little known place will become more popular. The reserve can be accessed on foot from the town centre. There are several access points, however currently the Christchurch City Council rangers are building a good connection from the end of Foster Terrace.

Register via the reserves committee secretary lytteltonreserves@hotmail.co.nz if you are keen to take a guided walk or get more involved in the regeneration of the reserve.

Lyttelton Rebuild Begins

Constructing Gaining Momentum

At long last building projects in Lyttelton seem to be gaining momentum. Last week the Lyttelton Review had a brief chat with David Bundy and chewed the fat about what was happening.

First cab off the rank was David's building, Minster House. If you are unfamiliar with the building it is located down on Norwich Quay and was the former Video Ezy and Seafarers building. David is leading a total refit and strengthening project of the building and hopes that within a year the building will be completed. In all David is working on a 340 square metre area. Wonderful to know that such a big area will become available for rental to a variety of business opportunities in the not too distant future.

Next to Minster House, Alex and Chris Herbert seem well underway replacing their home and business. And the Lyttelton Bakery also isn't far off building a new bakery on the corner of Norwich Quay and Oxford Street.

Continuing around the block, and into Canterbury Street, the Loon's Working Mens Club seems to be taking shape. Have you noticed the that roof is now on? Across the corner and Albion Square is well under construction. Some of the temporary artworks have been re-located. Plenty to Share is now on the vacant site next to the Porthole Bar.

Just a bit further up Canterbury Street and the Garage Sale has re-located into a newly opened council building at 25 Canterbury Street. It started trading Saturday April 12. Pop in and check it out. It will be open initially at the same times 10.00am to 1.00pm Saturday and 2.00pm to 4.00pm Thursday and Friday.

Across the road the Anglican Church site is progressing well. The church is now to lock up stage.

Coming back into London Street and on the port side quite a few things are taking shape. The Lyttelton Coffee Company seems almost set to go, and then next door, the pharmacy is set to open it's new shop inside the former supermarket.

Speaking of supermarkets, the new Lyttelton Supervalue is almost ready to begin trading. Owner Rob Dethier was very excited when we spoke to him. As you can see from the photos the interior is taking shape. They plan to be open by June.

Brian Rick also has plans for a temporary space where the former Empire Hotel and Pharmacy shop sites were [as per last weeks Lyttelton Review]. Turning right into Oxford Street and building has also started on the cabinet makers new premises.

It has taken quite a while to get going, but now it certainly looks like we have some building momentum. There is also the odd house or two completely rebuilt or on the way.

David Bundy also reminds us all to look at the District Plan Review to make sure we are happy with the proposed changes to the town centre in particular Norwich Quay.

Pharmacy Moves

Lyttelton's Worst Kept Secret is Confirmed

What you have heard is true, Bells Pharmacy Lyttelton is moving into a brand new permanent shop over Easter to be at 19 London Street (between the supermarket and the Lyttelton Coffee Company).

Keep an eye out for the next Lyttelton Review for some pictures and our Grand opening specials running over the month of May.

This new shop will be very different from the old shops we have had. We have had it designed with a focus on giftware and makeup while still providing you direct access to the pharmacist.

We have also had a private counselling room built. In fact the new shop will be almost twice as large as we have ever been. Grant and John have also decided now is the time to change the pharmacy name to Lyttelton Pharmacy and Post Centre, as this better reflects who we are.

“Your local pharmacy - serving Lyttelton since the 1880s.”

In the shop you will find a full range of Natio makeup and skincare, an extensive range of giftware, hats, scarves, and even funky socks. You will also see historical and contemporary pictures and photographs by local artists around our walls.

From the first of June we can do your warfarin blood tests for no charge at any time in our private counselling room. You will also be able to walk right up to the dispensary staff to ask advice and discuss your prescription. All of this is completely new to Lyttelton.

The new shop is due to be open on Thursday 24 April, all going well with the Ministry of Health. Over Easter weekend we will be closed. We will be closed from on 1.00pm on Thursday 17 April and open again at our new shop on Thursday 24 April at 9.00am.

If you need us during this time we will still be able to provide a service. This would involve you dropping your prescription off to the Lyttelton Health Centre, or the Diamond Harbour Medical centre, or our old shop while we are open between 10.00am and 12.00pm.

BECA Supports Cholmondeley

Helping to Put Cholmondeley House Back on the Map

To help rebuild Cholmondeley, which was demolished in 2012 due to earthquake damage, Beca has donated $45,000 to fund construction of the new Learning Studio. This will provide children staying at Cholmondeley with an environment structured towards education and creative activities.

Last week, members of the Cholmondeley Board and Executive hosted representatives from Beca at the Governor's Bay site of the new Cholmondeley Children's Centre. Beca's Executive Chairman Richard Aitken presented Kerry Dellaca, Chairman of the Cholmondeley Board of Governance with four pohutukawa trees to symbolise the donation and its contribution to the ongoing growth of the children Cholmondeley assists.

"Beca has been part of the Christchurch community for fifty years, so of course we want to see the city that is our home recover and flourish" says Richard Aitken. "One of our corporate values is Care, so helping an organisation which does such a great job of caring for those in need seemed an ideal way for us to contribute."

"We would like to express our sincere gratitude to Beca and all of their wonderful employees across seven countries that have contributed an incredible $45,000 to the rebuilding of Cholmondeley Children's Centre," says Sarah Vidette, Funding and Marketing Manager of Cholmondeley. "The new Learning Studio is a vital part of the rebuild and will provide children cared for at Cholmondeley the best possible environment to learn new skills, be creative, develop confidence, allowing them to be themselves and to discover new strengths. Beca's commitment to assist the Cholmondeley rebuild is ensuring many children and their families in Canterbury will continue to receive the support they need for many years to come. Thank you"

The donation is made up of contributions from Beca employees across seven countries, as well as an equivalent amount contributed by the company. Beca has also made donations to the Urban Search and Rescue dogs, and to replace the community cricket nets at Cashmere Primary School.

About Cholmondeley

Since 1925, Cholmondeley has provided short-term, emergency respite services to children aged between 3 and 12 years. Children stay at Cholmondeley to help alleviate family pressures when the usual supports are not enough or not available. Cholmondeley receives only partial financial assistance from government, so relies on the community support to continue to deliver its services. It has also seen a significant upturn in demand for services post-earthquakes. For more information, visit www.backonthemap.co.nz and <http://cholmondeley.org.nz>

About Beca

Established in 1918, Beca is New Zealand's largest employee-owned engineering and professional services consultancy, employing almost 3,000 staff in seven countries. Headquartered in Auckland, Beca operates from three market hubs: New Zealand, Australia, and Singapore. Beca works in four key sectors: industrial, infrastructure, buildings and public services. Its range of services includes project management, planning, engineering, architecture, surveying, cost estimating, asset management and valuations. For more information, visit www.beca.com

REVENGE WITH A LOAD OF BULL

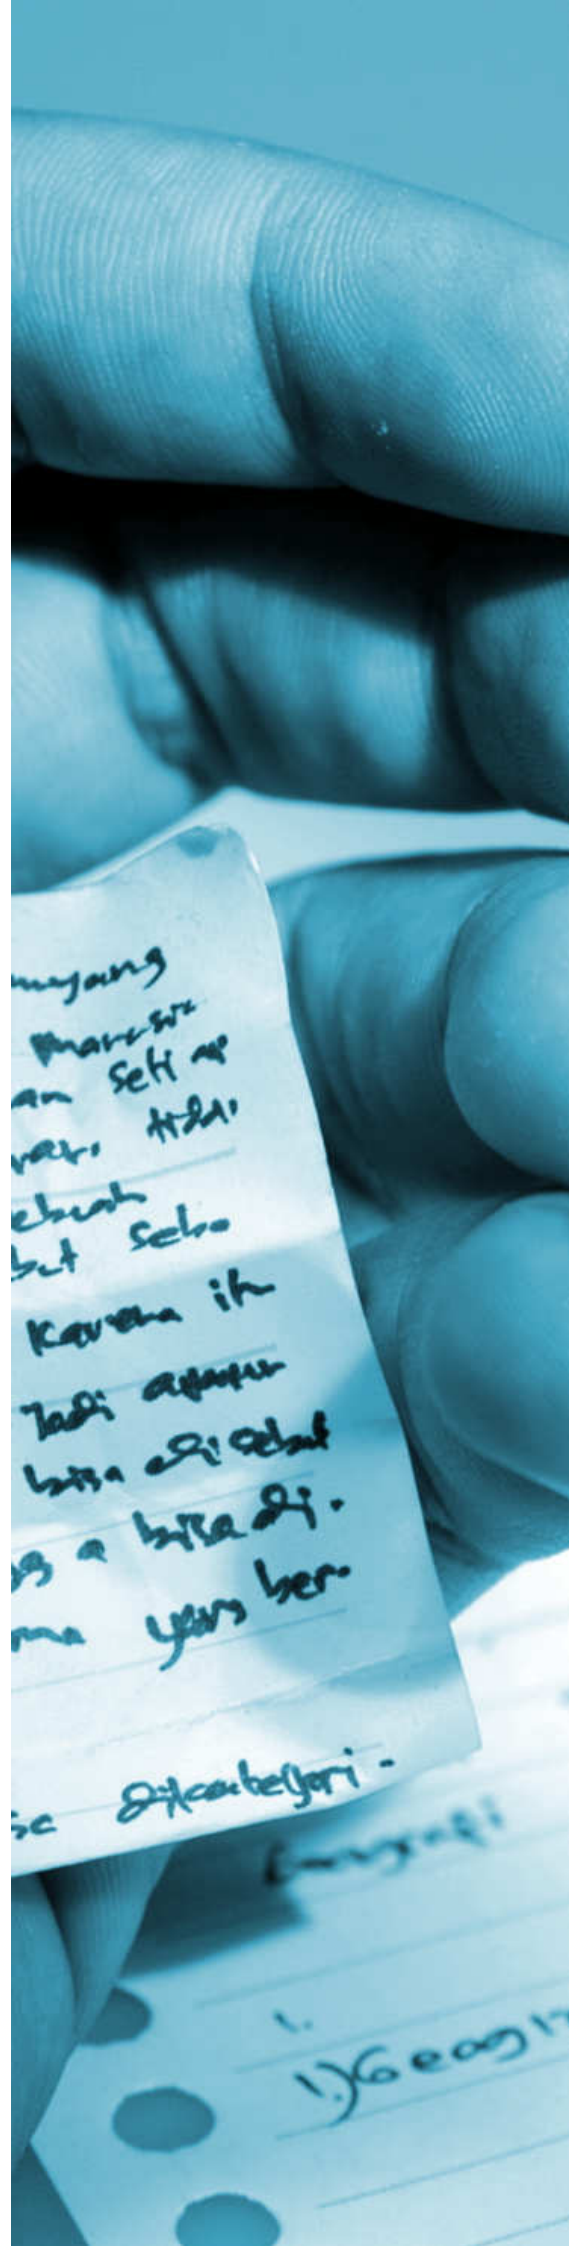

She was a lazy student
Who always received good grades
She also was a cheat
In exams she would rely
On what her neighbours wrote
She had developed the knack
To decipher what was on sight
We all knew what her game was
But did not feel we could grass
When the opportunity came
I had the satisfaction
To fix that lying little toad
And give her a taste of my potion
It was in a chemistry exam
She chose to sit next to me
She knew it was my favourite subject
So she opted to copy from me
I knew I could work rather fast
So I thought out my strategy
I gave her opportunity to spy
Most of what I wrote quickly
She hurriedly transferred
My notes on her assignment
It was then that I pretended to notice
What her wicked game had been
I moved out of her field of vision
And started my paper again
I managed to race the clock
Returning my paper on time
All she had from me
Was a load of bull
Which she handed in with aplomb

You should have seen her face
When the results were announced
If looks could kill
I would have died on the spot
The following year
She went to another college
To start no doubt all over again

We have often recalled that episode
I am not proud of my deviousness
But by Jove! I enjoyed dishing out
What she richly deserved

Govbus Initiative

Governors Bay Community Transport Trust

Governors Bay residents should have received a flyer promoting the website www.govbus.org.nz with information on the progress of the community transport service.

Having a pool of volunteer drivers will determine the success of the service. We plan to start with a return run from Governors Bay to Princess Margaret Hospital. We already have 18 volunteers to drive the vehicle, and are now working on a timetable, but the more drivers we have the better the service, so we are keen to hear from you! This could be on a casual or regular basis.

The trust has a start up grant from Environment Canterbury and should soon hear the result of our application to the Canterbury Community Trust for additional funds to purchase a 12 seat vehicle.

The vehicle will also be available for hire to groups within the community. For updates and enquiries please visit www.govbus.org.nz or contact Jenny Swaffield at 03 329 9606. We are keen to hear from you!

Ohinetahi Reserve Now Open

The Summit Road Society has advised members that Ohinetahi Reserve is open. The following is reprinted with the Society's permission:

'The Summit Road Society Board is pleased to be able to now formally reopen the majority of Ohinetahi Reserve. This has been a long and at times frustrating process involving many lengthy discussions at Board meetings, a geotechnical survey, some remediation work and minor re-routing of tracks by our volunteer team, and the manufacture and erection of new signs. We would not have been able to achieve this without the advice and support from the Port Hills Ranger team, funding for the survey from Christchurch City Council and our hard-working Ohinetahi team.'

Torpedo Boat Museum

Do you know about the Torpedo Boat Museum in Lyttelton? It's a great piece of maritime history telling the story of this harbours special boat that was purchased in the late 1800's to help protect the harbour from Russian invaders. Located at Magazine Bay the museum is open every Saturday and Sunday from 1-3pm.

To maintain these hours the team needs some more volunteers. Your role is hosting the visitors and this involves playing a short documentary and basically just being familiar with the site. With enough volunteers this wee job comes around every four to six weeks.

If you are interested you can contact Jed O'Donoghue locoman@slingshot.co.nz The museum is a member of the TimeBank so credits can be claimed for all service.

Want Ultra Fast Broadband?

Fast broadband is being rolled out across NZ – Ultra-Fast Broadband (UFB) in urban areas and the Rural Broadband Initiatives (RBI) in the rural areas. It is hoped that fast broadband will impact all of our lives in a positive way – for example through improved business productivity, engaging more people in education, providing a more seamless health service and enabling us to enjoy better quality entertainment, when and where we want it.

The Digital Office has been contracted by a number of organisations in the Canterbury Region to develop a strategy and action plan to assist uptake and use of fast broadband. They would like to hear from you about how you currently use the Internet, what stops you from using it more and what would make it easier for you to use the Internet.

Your feedback will play a valuable part in helping to develop a strategy and action plan for accelerating the uptake of fast broadband in the Canterbury Region.

There are 4 sections in this survey covering Internet use at home, at work, your skill level and online security. The survey will take approximately 10 minutes to complete.

When it asks you where do you live type Lyttelton rather than selecting one of the options. Also fill out the comment at the end and express disappointment in the lack of fibre to homes in Lyttelton even though UFB is already in London Street.

Confidentiality: All responses will remain confidential – data will be aggregated and no information will be identified with individuals. For more information please contact The Digital Office on hello@digitaloffice.co.nz

'For The Fallen'

They went with songs to the battle,
they were young,
Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow.

They were staunch to the end
against odds uncounted,
They fell with their faces to the foe.
They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

Lest We Forget.

OUTWARD BOUND

— EST. ANAKIWA NZ 1962 —

The benefits of a Leaps and Bounds course:

- The ultimate shared adventure, and special time together.
- Discover what is important to you individually and as a partnership.
- Build effective communication and a relationship that is real, open, honest, and based on respect.
- Share related life experiences with other adults and teenagers in similar situations.
- Consider the changing dynamic of your relationship and the passing over of responsibility.

“We had already made a definite decision not to leave Christchurch in the wake of the Christchurch earthquakes but our time at Outward Bound has re-affirmed this and we are more determined than ever to stay and continue to contribute to the recovery in whatever ways we are able to. We have learned many skills and a great deal about teamwork and leadership. We hope that we can give back to the community using these skills.”

- Richard and Fiona Porter Leaps & Bounds
