Representation Review

Model Proposed

For quite some time Council staff have been seeking our views on how wards should be structured for the next local body elections in October 2016. A combination of factors sparked the review that was instigated by the Local Government Commission. The number one factor was the amalgamation of Banks Peninsula and Christchurch City. With quite large disparities between representation for rural and city dwellers it was deemed time to re-assess and make the wards more evenly represented. The secondary factor was the Christchurch earthquakes. With many people moving out of the east and going to the west some electorates were growing rather rapidly and others were shrinking.

Speaking with Councillor Andrew Turner after quite an extensive public engagement phase councillors voted on their preferred representation model to be presented the wider public for comment. The model selected would see the city divided into 16 wards each being represented by one councillor rather than the current two, with the exception of Banks Peninsula.

What does this all mean for the Peninsula?

- Our ward would still exist in its entirety but it would expand over the Port Hills to include Heathcote-Sumner.
- We would still have one councillor.
- At the Community Board level things would change quite significantly for the Lyttelton

Mount Herbert Ward. Instead of having a community board for the Harbour, the board would expand into Sumner – Heathcote. The proposal suggests two board members for the Sumner area and two members for the Harbour area.

- In Akaroa/Wairea the existing board would remain but there would only be two members from each division.

Andrew is very keen to hear your views on the proposal. "I'm going to be quite busy over the next month hearing your thoughts and explaining the proposal" he said.

"I really want to know if you think this model will represent you well."

The proposal will be open for your submissions. Below is the timetable for when you can contribute your ideas and when the final outcomes will be known.

Lyttelton is the Regions Art Therapy Hub?

Lyttelton seems to be known for many things these days but its claim to fame as the Arts Therapy Hub is probably news to many of you. If you reflect maybe you'll remember the heart sewers in London Street after the February 2011 earthquakes. Then you might also recall the stalls that were set up at the Petanque Court where people did all sorts of craft and creative activities for that first year or so after the earthquakes kept rattling us. Prior to the earthquakes we had one registered therapist, now we have three out of a total of five in Christchurch and ten in the South Island!

Bettina Evans was drawn to Arts Therapy after the earthquakes. She was one of the people stitching hearts and helping soothe people's nerves during that shakey period of our lives. She then became one of the Time Bank Coordinators and applied her creative skills day after day at the Petanque Club. She experienced first-hand the power of art to make people feel better when their worlds were being turned upside down. During these creative activity days she met Debs Green the only other Art Therapist in Lyttelton at the time who encouraged her to train in the field. Three years later Bettina is a registered practitioner with a Masters in Art Therapy with first class honours.

"Prior to the earthquakes I'd never heard about such a job. As I have always loved working creatively with my hands this seemed like the perfect job for me" she said.

Art Therapy is all about using the creative process to make you feel better. It can be applied through many mediums for example: drawing, acting, singing, painting, modelling, dancing etc. Bettina enjoys story telling via art. The therapy is particularly useful for people who are stressed and, traumatised. This could be as a result of an illness, lifelong behavioural patterns, natural disasters etc.

"Some of the children and adults I work with find it difficult to express themselves. This may have happened as a result of dementia, stroke, dyslexia, a disability, or simply because it is often hard to find the right words when life is very complicated. Our society is too much about words and for some people that creates a barrier to communication. This creative process helps to release verbal blockages and can be the key to finding out what is troubling the person and to help them move forward" she said.

"As well as helping one to one there is also group work. This has been particularly useful for people in carer/support roles" she said. Linking it back to the earthquakes many of the support workers also had big issues to face themselves. Working in teams helped address the issues they faced.

Art Therapy offers a non-judgemental safe place for people to explore their feelings. Bettina shares an art therapy space with Debs Green in a studio in Lyttelton. Her ultimate dream is that an Arts Therapy Centre is created and all the local professionals can work together to offer individual therapy and group training sessions.

If you are keen to explore this therapy contact Bettina Evans 328 7204 or Bettina.nz@gmail.com

A Snapshot Councillor Turners Comments..

Draft Port Recovery Plan, Freedom Camping, Timebank...

The Draft Port Recovery Plan has been approved by ECAN for presentation to Minister Gerry Brownlee. There is now a period for further comment before the Minister makes his final decision on the plan. Until the final plan is gazetted there remains some uncertainty for the parties involved. The commissioners have recommended that a Quantitative Risk Survey be undertaken by the City Council in regards to the oil facility. This is a large piece of work and currently the exact time frame is not known and prior to commencement the parties need to determine who pays for the study.

"Until this is done there remains some uncertainty over the placement of any cruise ship terminal, and other activities within the area possibly affected, including recreational and boating activities, and commercial, community and residential activity. It is my expectation that any changes to the planning framework as a result of the QRA would affect future land use rather than current activity. This could include the Coastguard and Naval Point Club's plans for future development"

Good outcomes according to Councillor Turner were that consent is required for further reclamation at the Port and that the hearings panel recommended a whole of harbour catchment management plan be developed.

"The commissioners have now recommended this be led from the grassroots by the Banks Peninsula Water Zone Management Committee rather than a top down direction from the Minister" he said.

Council has done a very comprehensive study of Freedom Camping around the country. This analysis has produced a series of recommendations for Freedom Camping in the City and on the Peninsula. The proposed new By law is just about ready to be released for public comment. "For Lyttelton Harbour the only non permitted camping area is the town centre. At other times people can park for 3-5 days depending on the type of vehicle. Places are designated based on campers without toilet facilities and those fully contained", he said.

Councillor Turner is very excited about the City Council becoming a member of the Lyttelton Harbour

Timebank. He's helped facilitate Professor Edgar Cahn's community workshop at the council on September 3rd. "This as a wonderful opportunity for staff and elected representatives to get a clear understanding about how the Timebank works and the possibilities it brings to engage with our communities in a deeper way".

Book Reviews from the Lift Library

The FIRE Economy: New Zealand's Reckoning Jane Kelsey

If you are feeling uncomfortable about New Zealand's economic situation (and/or the world's) this book would explain it to you. Readers with a background in finance or economics would lap it up, but my limited background knowledge meant that I had to pause and reread sometimes, or even skim through some pages full of numbers. But I often felt "Ah, that's why!"/ "Now I see." / "Why hasn't this been made clear before? – oh, of course, they don't want us to understand it!" Jane Kelsey began work on this book in 2009, gathering information both here and overseas, and her detailed accounts of trends and consequences are fully backed by references. You can understand New Zealand's situation in relation to the rest of the world's trends. The topic of the Trans Pacific Partnership appears occasionally but does not dominate; it's easy to see how the current situation has come about, and the dangers it poses.

I thought of quoting extracts from Jane Kelsey's Introduction to the book - and then found most of it on Scoop, which I strongly recommend you read: <http://www.scoop.co.nz/stories/HL1507/S00101/the-fire-economy-new-zealands-reckoning-by-jane-kelsey.htm>

Prior unity: the basis for a new human civilization Adi Da (kindly donated by a new friend)

This book is a compilation of the writings and recorded talks of Adi Da, the World-Friend, 1939-2008. "What this book is saying is that the impulse to peaceful, cooperative co-existence is humanity's "true north". This impulse comes from our root-intelligence as one single species, and, at the same time, reflects the inherent unity of all life. We cannot escape the implications. To satisfy what human beings truly want and to ensure a benign future for life on Earth, we have no choice but to transcend what separates us and to build on the deep foundation that we all share, which is our prior, or already-existing, unity."

It seems I may have lent out a book in February this year or after, without recording the borrower's details. Do any of you have LIFT's copy of Michael Pollan's 'In defence of food'? If so, please let me know as soon as possible.

Susie Lees, who visited Lyttelton some time ago, warning about dangers to New Zealand food and environment, has sent this: <http://us11.campaign-archive1.com/?u=d4df3bfe1f69e0697a038c9e7&id=15d1e01e99&e=a2c5523586>

What's Happening at Community House

There is a flurry of activities being generated at Community House. Walking into the centre recently the sewing machine was out and located against the wall were lovely bags, draft stoppers and cushions. Sewing has only recently been added to the suite of activities available. "It was all a rather organic beginning", said Community Facilitator Maureen Dellow-Jackson.

"One of our regular attendees liked the idea of sewing when the weather was bleak and cold. We found a machine and then we were then inspired by the Lyttelton Plastic Bag free campaign and the next thing lovely material bags and other items were being made", she said.

There are already plenty of uses for the bags. Every Wednesday morning a group of people from Community House go shopping at the local Supervalu. Now this whole group are about to become plastic bag free because they will be supplied with lovely hand sewn ones. There's talk about using the bags to deliver the home cooked meals for the elderly and when there are surplus to use them to help with fundraising for Community House. The bags are really stylish and come with locally designed labels. The idea behind the labels is so that everyone knows how to contact and locate Community House and of course to show how professional things are. Bags can be made whenever anyone would like to have a go on the machine.

If you are a regular at Community House most days of the week there is something interesting to do. The week begins on Tuesday with the regular community lunch. This past week eighteen people came along. It's getting popular. Wednesday some of them join the shopping trip with door to door home service in the morning and then others get involved with the Fruit and Vegetable Collective. This might involve collecting the produce and bringing it back to the local deliverers for distribution that afternoon.

Thursday another keen group gets out and about walking. The very useful Community House van gets the team of them to the flat in Christchurch where they team up with the council to enjoy the walking initiatives that are centered around Beckenham on the flat. Friday has become cooking day. To my pleasant surprise it's mostly the guys getting involved making the biscuits and cakes for the week. They also proudly support the Timebank team supplying them with biscuits and cakes for the infamous Lyttelton Welcome Bags. Watch out if it's your birthday for this group inevitably will turn up with a cake for you.

In between all those activities there is the odd excursion and some Tuesday's the local school children pop in with their own baking that they share with everyone who is visiting. The House has a lovely atmosphere and you can see many of the people really enjoy their contact with one another. It looks like a big extended family. Maureen's programme of activities is really working and is definitely making a positive difference to the lives of the people who attend.

Lyttelton Community House is open Monday to Thursday 10am-2pm, 7 Dublin Street Lyttelton, ph: 741 1427.

LPC Norwich Quay building demolition

The former LPC administration building on the corner of Norwich Quay and Dublin Street suffered structural damage in the 2010/2011 earthquakes and demolition will begin this month.

Our contractor Smith Crane and Construction aims to remove the building and resurface the area by early 2016.

Traffic management and secure fencing will surround the building and any asbestos will be removed before beginning demolition.

The contractor will use a large crawler crane to incrementally cut and crane out sections of the building from the roof to the second floor. From the second floor down, excavators and high reach nibblers will be used to complete demolition.

LPC will undertake measures to minimise disruption, noise and dust to the Lyttelton township during this project.

We are considering the future use of the site which may include maintenance facilities.

Our head office will be rebuilt on Port land near the Container Terminal. This will allow most staff to work from one building. We appreciate your patience during demolition.

For any enquiries, please contact LPC reception on 328 8198.

Between the years of 1914 and 1918 five hundred and seventy four residents of Banks Peninsula are recorded to have left home to serve King and Country in the foreign lands of World War I. They travelled as a portion of the 100,000 New Zealanders from our clay productive soils to mud raked, blood soaked battlefields. Thousands of miles from home under the thin guise of imperial loyalty. 89 did not return to the rich soils of Banks Peninsula, buried in foreign ground with poppies to remember. The many who did return, came home to new and altered lives. TAKE ME HOME is fashioned from 574 terracotta cylinder vessels each layered with a thin veneer of imperial bone china clay. This reveals either a present shadow of a returned service man or an absent silhouette of the lost. Their clay skins are stained indelibly white as they cluster together on the pathway, side by side with the lost, searching for home.

Harry Ell Summit Road Memorial Trust:

The trust, which is a registered charity, was set up in 2002 to build up a fund for the purchase of land on the Port Hills and for the maintenance of existing Port Hills parks and reserves. Since that time, funds from donations and bequests have been slowly increasing. In 2014 the Trust received a substantial legacy from a former member which has enabled the trustees to start to plan for the future and to begin to identify possible strategic purchases to add to the public estate.

To find out more about the Trust and the work that the trustees have been doing, all members and supporters are invited to the Trust's AGM:

Neighbourhood Week

Applications are now open for Neighbourhood Week
 Week: 23 October to 1 November
 Closing Date for Applications - 28 August 2015 at 5pm

What is Neighbourhood Week?

Neighbourhood Week is about bringing people together, so why not organise a local gathering to get to know your neighbours? It could be a street party, progressive dinner, monster garage sale or a sports day. Neighbourhood Week is an opportunity to introduce yourself to your neighbours and have a small get together of a few households, or a larger gathering. It celebrates the unique and diverse flavour that is characteristic of each individual neighbourhood. Getting to know your neighbours can make the difference between merely occupying an address and living in a neighbourhood of friends. A neighbourhood could also be a small group of families at a local kindergarten, kohanga reo or school who share a common desire to build a strong community with each other.

Here are some great ideas which you could initiate and contribute to:

- Street party
- Neighbourhood sports day
- Neighbourhood/Beach clean-up
- Garage sale
- BBQ

Three years ago Big Daddy Wilson, originally from North Carolina in the USA, toured New Zealand for the first time in a well received and successful tour all across the country.

Finally he's back again, with plenty of new songs and a brand new CD to bring along for the ride.

9Big Daddy Wilson was born in the small town of Edenton, North Carolina.

"We were very poor, but I had a beautiful childhood. As a child I worked in the tobacco and cotton fields, I was a real country boy. I quit school at the age of 16, and later joined the US Army. I met the blues in Germany, where I still live today. I've been writing poems and songs long before I started singing the Blues, I didn't know what it was, but it was mixed in my blood, I was born with the blues. So I started Back to the Roots Acoustic Blues, just me and a guitar player."

Wilson has established himself as a great performer on tours and a busy gig schedule throughout Europe, Scandinavia and the US.

He has won several awards in Europe for his unique trademark style of Blues and Roots music. Big Daddy Wilson's music is all heart and natural soul, with a fabulous warm baritone voice. He draws from a wide stylistic spectrum from blues, folk, soul and gospel.

His latest CD "Time" is produced by blues icon Eric Bibb. This is what he says about Big Daddy Wilson: "As soon as you hear Big Daddy Wilson's voice, whether speaking or singing, you hear his southern country roots. The sound of the original blues people comes through loud and clear, reminding you of a bygone era when music came from people's front porches instead of iPhones. Wilson has a voice baptized in the river of Afro-American song – a voice with the power to heal. His repertoire encompasses spirituals, blues, country and soul, delivered in his unique and heartfelt way."

On his side is old band mate from way back and good friend Steve 'Guitar' Gilles, playing the acoustic guitar and resonator slide as well as blues harp.

Steve has already been along on the first 2012 NZ tour, and then a year later seasoning his chops with US Bluesman "Watermelon Slim" all over Aotearoa.

This gig will also feature the 'Steve Gilles Band' full band lineup in second half of evening.

Big Daddy Wilson will perform with Steve Gilles on electric guitar, Dean Hunter on bass, Symen Hunter on drums and Glenn Thomas on sax!

AUGUST 6-23

Tin Palace

War Story Tatyanna Meharry
war sTOry explores methods that are imbued into our psyche to make the sacrifices of war possible. The men and women who become toys on a plastic field whilst others play a blind game of tactics, officials who treat numbers on a page as expendable goods, asking: when do the toys become real? Ceramicist Tatyanna Meharry is granddaughter to celebrated NZ artist Doris Lusk and was the winner of the 2013 WoW supreme award.

Don't miss this exhibition and the associated programmes with the artist and University of Canterbury history tutor Dr Gwen Parsons.
