Review Creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

Naval Point Development

Good Turnout – Think Big

Quite a few people took the opportunity to come along to the open session run by the City Council on May 18th. Andrea Wild from the local City Council governance team explained that the purpose of the exercise was to get the general public's views on the entire area before any formal work began to develop a plan for wider community consultation.

Council staff encouraged participants to think wider than just Naval Point with so many other projects happening around the inner harbour edge. For example Te Ana Marina, cruise ships, the gradual retreat of the Port Company from the inner harbour and so forth.

Attendees were presented with a series of maps around the room with headings.

Use: What do you use Naval Point For? What would you like to use Naval Point for in the future?

Future Development: What would you like to see?

Lyttelton Recreation Ground: Are there any improvements the City Council could make to the ground?

Access via the land: How do you access the area? How could access be improved for pedestrians, cyclists, cars, trucks etc. What is the parking like? What difficulties do you face accessing the area now?

Access via the water. How and where do you access the water?

If you are keen to share your views you can follow this link to the council website. Comments will be accepted until the end of May.

Researching your home in Lyttelton

Heritage New Zealand's Christchurch Office held a How to Research Your House workshop in Lyttelton in April. Attendees discovered that uncovering a house's history is a fascinating voyage into the past. The workshop was held at the Lyttelton-Mt Herbert Community Board's new boardroom. The beautiful view over the port provided a lovely backdrop for the evening.

'Our brilliant presenters did a great job at giving practical and straightforward tips' says Rosemary Baird, Outreach Coordinator Canterbury West Coast. 'They all have a unique angle about different approaches to try'. With the increasing digitisation of historical documents it's amazing what you can discover from the comfort of your armchair. Christine Whybrew, Heritage Advisor, Crown Land from Heritage New Zealand, showed everyone the different online depositories and websites that house researchers can access. Presenters from the Christchurch City Council heritage team, Christchurch Library, and Archives New Zealand revealed what types of treasures researchers can find in their holdings.

Many of the presenters used examples of Lyttelton homes. And publicity about the event stirred up memories from local homeowners. Lyttelton resident Ian Moore was unable to attend the evening but related the story to Rosemary of the old house at 4 Exeter Street. Before they pulled the house down in 1974, they discovered hundreds of old olive oil bottles stacked up behind the front wall.

Ian also had a strange tale around his old house deed documents. When he recovered the deeds from the Housing Corp after discharging his mortgage, he discovered that the gold seals and ribbons were missing. Some years later he discovered from dentist friends that the cleaners at the Housing Corp used to head down to the filing area and pinch the gold tags and seals to sell to the local dentist for fillings. "The tags are probably smiling out at me from someone's face" said Ian.

"Researching your house may seem like a dry and dusty occupation but in reality it's an incredibly rewarding hobby" says Rosemary. "That moment of discovery, when you uncover the elusive missing piece of information, provides a real buzz. Understanding the past construction of the house can help with renovation and conservation decision making. And most importantly, researching your house gives you a sense of belonging and connection to your home".

If you wish to sign up on a waiting list for the next Research Your House workshop contact Rosemary at rbaird@heritage.org.nz

Sign of the Kiwi

Some interesting history

As part of the Information Centre training programme for volunteers we have a monthly trip exploring places that we recommend to visitors. This month we headed to the Sign of the Kiwi, one of the Port Hills iconic stone cottages that is a café at the top of Dyers Pass Road.

Andrea King volunteers at the Information Centre and for this trip she came with a briefcase in hand. As we sat to enjoy what the café had to offer she started to tell us about her families close association with the café. She placed this photo on the table depicting all these elegant women. "On the left of the photo is my grandmother Alice Gee, in the middle of the photo is Ada Gee, Ada married Harry Ell" she said. "I was told never to forget that a "G" married an "L"!"

Harry Ell was the visionary politician from the early 1900's who had the foresight to create reserves in the Port Hills and beyond to preserve and protect the remains of the remnant forest. As part of Harry's dream he wanted the reserves to be connected by a series of rest houses so that the public could make their way more comfortably around the area. Sign of the Bellbird was the first to be built, followed by Sign of the Packhorse, Sign of the Kiwi and Sign of the Takahe. Interestingly Sign of the Kiwi began its life as a toll house in 1916. Harry's idea was visitors would pay a small fee to enter the area and the entrance money collected would be used to fund the expansion of the reserve programme. This idea proved rather problematic when many citizens believed the roads used to access the area were paid for with existing taxes. To counter this view and to stop people avoiding the charge Harry moved himself and his wife to live at the Sign of the Kiwi in 1920. Andrea's grandmothers sister Ada moved as well! Her role was to run the tearooms. She did that until 1926.

Andrea highlighted another interesting fact that none of us knew. If you ever wondered why there is a Mount Adelaide near Sign of the Bellbird, Harry named it after his wife. "Ada was short for Adelaide" she said!

The current café owners were very interested to hear Andrea's story. Andrea recalled many visits that she had to the café in earlier years and remembered about all the family memorabilia that hung on the walls. "All of that memorabilia is no longer on the walls" she said. The current café owners became very excited about Andrea's photos and story. We can only hope that a collection of the early founder's story can be collated so that once again family memorabilia hang on the walls telling the fascinating story of Harry Ell and the great legacy of natural spaces that he left the people of Christchurch and the Banks Peninsula.

Happy Birthday Harbour Co-op

Lyttelton's community-owned store is having 2 birthdays this year!

August 2017 marks the 10 year anniversary of when the shop first opened as Lyttel Piko in 2007. In June the Co-op will celebrate its fifth year since the community bought the organic store in 2012, turning it into a co-operative that has 213 owner members to date, and is run by a dedicated group of staff and volunteers.

These two milestones are very proud moments in the history of this unique and beautiful store. It has stood through some significant changes and is a real community hub within Lyttelton - offering information on local health and fitness classes, promoting and sponsoring environmental events and rallies, and acting as a support network for local vegetarians, vegans and omnivores alike through the years after the earthquakes when the Harbour Co-op was the only supermarket in the local area.

In the past few years the store has gone through a lot of changes. The new management team has taken the store's original style and essence and created a new business model balancing ethical goals with financial sustainability, and updating the shop floor plan to create an open and spacious feel, a change that has been a hit with customers.

The Harbour Co-op's values and ethics provide a foundation for the Co-op, and this sets it apart from other stores in a way that is immediately obvious when you walk through the door. For the Co-op team members, caring for people and the environment is just as important as the products they sell. One of their next goals is to reduce packaging within the store and upgrade and expand the bulk and gravity-fed bins to house more plastic-free options for their customers. They want to spread the message that buying in bulk not only helps in the reduction of plastics on our land and in our oceans, it also makes buying organic goods more affordable - often making them cheaper than non-organic options from supermarkets.

Over the next 3 months the Co-op is celebrating its birthday by giving gifts to its customers! There will be lots of samples to taste and give away, prizes to be won and lots of in-store discounts on selected products. The shop has been gifted many treats from its suppliers (over 130 suppliers in total), which they want to use to show their thanks and appreciation of their customers. Not only that - over these 3 months the Co-op will give customers who spend over $30, $50 or $100 a 3%, 5% and 7% discount off their purchases respectively (6%, 8%, and 10% for Co-op members).

If you haven't visited the store before, there has never been a better time to come by to see (and smell!) the difference the Co-op has to offer. Friendly service is always available to help meet your needs - from special dietary requirements to earth-friendly cleaning products.

The Harbour Co-op can also be found on-line at www.harbourcoop.co.nz and on Facebook, Twitter and Pinterest.

Lyttelton Pool

The Christchurch City Council's Recreation and Sports Unit and Banks Peninsula Governance Team would like to say a big thank you to the Timebank support team for all their support with the 2016-2017 pool season. It was the first year that the key system was introduced to the Lyttelton Pool and the Council are extremely grateful for all the support provided to trial this new initiative. The Timebank team were involved in assisting with the application process, monitoring membership, promotion, cleaning schedules and on-going support. Feedback has now been collected from those that played an active part in the running of this new scheme and it is from this feedback that the Recreation and Sports Team will prepare a report to pave the way forward for the 2017-2018 season. We will ensure to keep everyone posted on future developments.

Again, a big thank you to the Timebank team in particular, Wendy Everingham, Richard Homer and Djore McKinnon for their support, motivation and enthusiasm to assist with getting the key system up and running and lifeguarding when required!

Best wishes from the Lyttelton Pool team, Christchurch City Council

Pedestrians at risk

The farmers market team would like to remind our community that the main block of London Street is a pedestrian zone on Saturdays until 2pm. There are many people, including children and elderly, wandering on the street between 1pm and 2pm who are not looking out for vehicles, and are at risk if people start to drive through before the road closure has been lifted. Unfortunately there have been more and more people driving their cars down the street at this time. Please respect the road closure, be patient and plan ahead for no vehicle access until 2pm.

An Evening of Thanks

Farewells and New Beginnings

Things are changing at Community House and the Youth Centre. Financial realities and changing demographics mean the Youth Centre has closed. Fortunately, Community House remains open. To celebrate all the achievements over the years a special evening was held at the Top Club.

Supporters, sponsors, friends and family met to celebrate all the achievements of both organisations. MC'd by Hon Ruth Dyson we heard the stories of the from retiring manager Christine Wilson. Christine's involvement with youth began years ago when Auntie Dawn – Dawn Kottier encouraged her to come back and work in Lyttelton with our youth. With teenagers of her own and huge gatherings of youth in her garage Christine effectively started the youth centre! From humble beginnings in the garage they moved to the Anglican Hall and then to the present site in Dublin Street. Andrew Stark was acknowledged for being such an amazing landlord and helping this community whenever it was required. Stark Brothers own the building which they gladly made available for elderly and youth services all these years.

Christine visibly upset said, "It is with a heavy heart that we had to close the Youth Centre but it was beyond our control".

On a happier note she went on to explain that Community House will remain. Community House has a shorter history and came out of work developed by Noeline Allen. Noeline believed there was a need to support elderly in this area and her research backed up this view. Community House was established for this purpose 9 years ago. Christine was appointed the manager of both organisations.

"Community House really excelled after the earthquakes. Teams of volunteers stepped up to help our elderly folk who were scared and needed basic support with food and water" she said. That programme still continues and Christine is really proud of the work her team did. "This developed into the regular meals programme for the elderly and sick plus the drop in centre, community support and weekly lunch".

Christine will not be retiring from community life. Instead she will now be able to focus all her energy into her role as the Banks Peninsula Community Board Chair. She leaves Community House in good hands. Thea Mickell, Fred Tunnicliffe, Lex Calder and Hana Sylvester will remain.

Christine mentioned many of the people who played a key role in the organizations over the years. She thanked Flo McGregor, Sue Fitzgerald, Thea Mickell, Leister Wilson, Anita Maugher, Gary Manch, Jo Laing, Colleen and Mark Palmer, Alex Carne and everyone who had had an association with the organizations.

She concluded "It's been such a privilege and honor to work here".

creative Sampler

Creative Sampler Returns

Saturday 17 June 2017
11.00 - 4.00 pm
Lyttelton Recreation Centre

We are pleased to announce the return of the popular Creative Sampler to the Festival of Lights programme this year. This event is a combined effort between the Lyttelton Harbour Timebank and Project Lyttelton's Events Team. As the days grow shorter and the nights draw in what a perfect time to open wide our creativity and make or create things together! The event was run for the first time as part of Project Lyttelton's Lyttelton Summerfest in February of this year. It was a great success.

Would you like to run a workshop again or be involved in a workshop? Can you paint, sing, dance, play a musical instrument, sew or any other creative talents you can share? Do you know of any other folk that would like to be involved? If you have an idea for a workshop we would love to hear it.

The first event in February was so well received. Its success lay in its truly collaborative and simple nature.

From tutors to workshop attendees, (time bankers and non time bankers) to organisers we all pitched in, it was magic, we want to create this again. Timebank members will be able to pay with timebank credits to attend the workshops and non timebank members will be asked to pay a koha.

Someone said 'it was just like being at home', Suse said 'can we have this every weekend'?

For our planning we need to hear from you as soon as possible if you want to run a workshop. Email timebankaotearoa@gmail.com If you want to attend a workshop we will only be taking one workshop booking per person on the day. Doors open 11.00am. This is to ensure everyone gets a chance to attend a workshop.

The full workshop programme will be released soon. Go to the Festival of Lights facebook page and Project Lyttelton's website.

Orlando and Pearl

PART 2

Maureen woke with a start. The sudden rain pounding on the corrugated iron roof of her boarding house room reminded her of the fists of her Father raining down on her brothers' head.

How she missed her brother, she hated thinking of him languishing there in the Lyttelton Gaol, the ugly edifice sitting like some dark fairy-tale castle on Oxford Street. Maureen got up, her feet freezing on the thin lino on the floor, she struggled to open the sash window a little, just enough to feel the raw damp air. It always made her feel better somehow though she couldn't help but feel badly that she was dry, if not warm, while her brother, her innocent brother, Liam, her friend and protector, was cold and damp.

Liam had trouble communicating, she knew that was why he had been imprisoned for a theft he wasn't guilty of. He couldn't express his innocence and he came across as slow on the uptake, but Maureen knew her sharp as a tack brother was still there, somewhere, just hidden. One of their Fathers' beatings had affected his speech and to an extent, his hearing, and left him emotionally uncertain. When she talked to him she always tried to use her hands and body.

She smiled for a moment, of course her physicality helped her communicate with the animals. Although Orlando had no trouble talking. Maureen laughed out loud as she thought of the brindle cat yelling like a banshee at the sailors for their washing.

She must go back to bed and get some sleep before work in the morning, her work for the animals paid her rent at the boarding house and helped her give her brother some pieces of fruit or a bun or some other little treat on visiting days.

The prisoners worked so hard building the retaining walls around Lyttelton, when she saw Liam in the work gang she really didn't know if she should acknowledge him or not, she knew that he was greatly ashamed at being in gaol. A place their father frequented back in Ireland.

Maureen was determined to get her brother released, but as a woman alone she felt very powerless. Nevertheless, She Would Prevail! She shut the window, and slipped into bed feeling more positive than she had in days, ready to start her day in a few short hours, as the animals' hands.

News from the Top Club

Hi everyone,

We've had a few great nights at the club recently with birthdays, and the Jackpot prize going only last week, and it's been great to see people enjoying the club. With Super Rugby hotting up locally and the upcoming Lions Tour, we hope we have a few in for the games on the big screen too.

We must let you know about a change on the committee too. After a number of years as a committee member and more recently as Vice President, Pete Bloxham has decided to step down. Pete has been central to the running of the behind the scenes of the club, and we thank him for all he has done.

In his place, we are really pleased to announce Christine Wilson was nominated and has accepted the role of Vice President, and will continue her hard work for the committee and the club we're sure. Next time you see either of them, it would be a perfect excuse to share a drink and a chat to congratulate them.

We share an update on the rebuild progress too. Having entered our consent plans to the council, we have experienced a torrid back and forth I'm sure you can all imagine as we try and finalise the next steps. We are honestly as frustrated as you are with the seeming lack of progress, but I assure you we are working feverishly in the background to get us to a position where we can share more about our future.

The AGM will be in the next couple of months, and we will endeavour to share more with you then.

In the meantime, enjoy the upcoming regular events at the top club. Bring over some friends and enjoy the view and the great company and staff we have.

Quiz Night

Rob will continue as quiz master in our upcoming midwinter quiz night. The last two were great, and we can't wait to host the next one. Dates to be confirmed, so subscribe to our Facebook page for updates, or keep an eye out for posters in the club.

Free Internet

We never talk about this, and I don't know why. We increased the speed of the internet connection earlier in the year, and it's free to use for everyone. Check the bar for the current password and enjoy

Housie Nights

We hear such great things about our increasingly more famous Housie nights. Venue: St Saviours Church
Winchester St
Lyttelton $15

Human beings are born to move. With dance we thrive- physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually.

Open Floor is a lively movement meditation practice on the dance floor.

And for this one precious life, it is our home address. When we use the dance to be fully embodied - physically, emotionally, mindfully - it simply means being home for the beautiful ride of being alive.

Jan is an Open Floor teacher in training who mixes stirring music with clear instructions to inspire wild dances and tender ones, connection between dancers and solo time.

There are no steps to learn and no way to do it wrong.

Travel

By John Riminton.

Although it is almost a cliché to describe life as a road to be travelled, the old man was delighted by his discovery of Roger McGough's charming poem "The Journey of a Lifetime" with each verse preceded by the children's cry:

"Are we nearly there yet?

Are we nearly there?

to be told in the first verse that there is still a long, long way to go, and in the final verse:

Yes, old friends, you're nearly there

Taken the road as far as it goes.

Now the journey of a lifetime

Is drawing to its close."

Thinking back over his own lifetime, the old man could only think of it as lucky: always a roof over head; always a meal in prospect, though maybe not always one of choice; loving family; companionship. What more could be hoped for?

His mind drifted over the world scene, bringing up an image of another life. A pregnant woman with a small child in tow, struggling out of Syria in order to face a terrifying journey in an open boat that, with great good fortune, might take her to the shore of an unknown country whose language she did not speak, whose customs and religion were unknown to her as she landed with no saleable skills, two mouths to feed now and another one coming. How could that life possibly be compared with his? Another image: of an illiterate nine year old Dinka boy, Deng*, captured from his tribe in South Sudan, marched endlessly across a barren landscape to a vicious camp where he would be trained to use a gun before being forced into a front line to fight people he did not know for reasons that even his leaders did not understand. Surely both would wish that the journey of their lives would soon draw to a close.

It was hard to avoid the conclusion that these differences were merely due to accidents of birth and that their trials were nothing more than chance. Suddenly he asked himself why the word "trials" had come into his mind. It was commonplace to talk about the "trials of life" but these two victims had had absolutely no influence on the factors that led to their miseries so substitute that word "miseries" for "trials".

Why did so many millions around the world have such appalling roads to travel? Obviously it was a question that had occupied the minds of men at least since the birth of Hinduism, the earliest recorded religion. In a closed village society it would be easy to think that a bad person's karma would mean that s/he would be reincarnated in a lower life form. Later the Greeks had dreamt up whimsical interventions by the idiosyncratic individuals who were said to live on Mt. Olympus. But those were small societies. On a global scale, with populations in billions and an infinity of situations, those concepts just wouldn't wash. Instead, were all roads random, dependent on chance and that accident of birth? How the individual travelled their own particular road was, of course, another matter - but was that the result of inherited accident?

The old man sighed and reached for his glass of wine, grateful that his musing were totally unimportant.

* Deng Thiak Adut, thanks to humanitarian chance he was taken to Australia, age 15 unable to speak English. He studied, qualified in law and was declared "NSW Australian of the Year in 2016"

His book "Songs of a War Boy" is in the Christchurch. City Libraries.

Let's Not Argue June 8-24th

Let's Not Argue is the story of every relationship told with movement and words. It depicts the best, the worst and the funniest parts of the everyday interactions between husband and wife, including the ever-changing gender roles and relationship dynamics. Let's Not Argue acknowledges the parts of relationships that make us human. But it's not too serious ... and it's not for kids. Directed by Mike Friend, founder of the Lyttelton Arts Factory (formerly Loons Theatre), and choreographed by Neil Fisher, who is internationally renowned for his work in London's West End, the show features Christchurch's well-known and much-loved couple David Ladderman and Lizzie Tollemache.

Christchurch International Jazz & Blues Festival May 25 – 27 at LAF

Jazz & Blues comes to Lyttelton at the end of May, with talented local musicians Carmel Courtney and Ari Freeman leading a stellar five piece tribute to the songs of Tom Waits on May 25 & 26. And internationally renowned Irish singer Mary Coughlan performs two shows on Sat May 27. These shows are selling out, so you'd be best to book your tickets (through Eventfinda) to secure your seat!
