Review Creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

Vehicle access to parts of the Port Hills' Summit Rd could be restricted at night in a bid to protect the isolated and ecologically-sensitive area from vandalism and damage.

The proposed restrictions are also targeted at improving road safety by keeping unnecessary traffic off the route.

Following talks with the Summit Road Protection Authority and Police, the Christchurch City Council, in conjunction with Selwyn District Council, is considering restricting access to the Summit Rd, from Rapaki Rd to Gebbies Pass Rd, and Worsleys Rd (Summit Rd-Worsleys Track) between 10pm and 5am on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and on public holidays.

Under the proposal people living on the Summit Rd and the upper section of Worsleys Rd will still be able to access their properties between those times, as will their visitors, but all other vehicles under 3500 kg will be prohibited from using the road.

Pedestrians and cyclists will still have full access.

The public have until Friday, August 4 to give their feedback on the proposed restrictions.

Council Transport Operations Manager Aaron Haymes said the proposal to restrict access to the Summit Rd at night was prompted by concerns at the level of anti-social behaviour occurring in the area.

Restricting night time road access was considered the best option for protecting the area from further damage and nuisance.

Access to the Sign of the Kiwi, via Dyers Pass Rd, would not be affected by the proposed restrictions and nor would the restrictions stop people accessing properties on the Summit Road and Worsleys Road for legitimate reasons.

"What we really want to hear is what the public think. Is this the right step to be taking to protect this important recreational and ecological area?" Mr Haymes said.

What do you think? Have your say.

Lyttelton Community House Has Anything Changed?

After the changes at Community House we thought it was time to have a catch up with the new Chair Thea Mickell. Thea was pleased to let us know that despite all the recent changes all the services have remained the same except for Thursday when the centre is closed for the day.

She gave us the run down on what you can still expect to find at Community House and what they have accomplished..

“Our meals service is still a big part of our service. Our cook and volunteers deliver hot meals in the Lyttelton Harbour basin area. We are looking at extending the service out to Diamond Harbour, Church and Charteris Bay” she said.

A shared community lunch is still available for people each Tuesday at 12pm. You are encouraged to pop in and enjoy the food, warmth and conversation.

Visiting the Kindy each term remains an important event for both elderly and children.. “The Kindy staff and children have been so friendly and welcoming which has helped this event to be a great success and a highlight for many of our elderly” she said. “We take a long a group of elderly and listen to the children singing and then have a morning tea. That has helped the Kindy and community House foster, build and strengthen intergenerational relationships in the community”. An outcome of this event is several people have been volunteering at the kindy, reading with the children, playing the piano and helping with arts and crafts.

In June Community House took advantage of the fundraising opportunity at the Garage Sale and fundraised $250. This activity was run by a team of volunteers.

Shortly they will be running a quiz at Freeman’s dining room. This has been arranged by board member Fred Tunnicliffe and Sarah Freeman. “We had one a year and a half ago and it was a great success” she said.. The date is Thursday 10th August from 7pm. 4 in a team and $15 a person with all the proceeds going to LCH. Call 328-7517 to book a table. Door sales and cash payment only. See the poster in this edition of the Lyttelton Review.

Another interesting activity they have been doing is making connections in the community for the Lyttelton oral histories project run by Kris Herbert with Lyttelton Primary School [LPS] children. Children have been interviewing those in the community who grew up here and finding out what it was like. These interviews have been taking part at LPS giving the interviewees the chance to look at the school and once again building intergenerational relationships in Lyttelton.

On a one to one level Community House recently helped someone find housing in Lyttelton and worked with him to put a CV together. This resulted in a long-term work contract with accommodation in Kaikoura. LCH can help the general community with access to the internet and phone when looking for work as well as to support and advocacy through this process.

In keeping with their work with the school and Kindy they have just got together to apply for Red Cross funding in relation to a community event to bring together the young and old- “Watch this space” said Thea.

A completely new initiative for Community House focuses on their upgraded kitchen. It’s now a commercial kitchen available for hire. All proceeds go to operational running costs. Give the centre a call if you are interested.

Another new development is Community House has a tenant that supports their operations. A good partnership between the community and the Rail and Maritime Transport Union Inc has been fostered that is beneficial for everyone.

Finally, Thea says that volunteer numbers have grown and are stable and that adds a rich layer to the mixture of services on offer.

The Magic of Art

Check out the New Exhibition

Community House was having a refresh. The phone rang and Social Worker Hannah Sylvester asked if the Information Centre would like to host an exhibition of paintings from local couple Jill and James.

Jill and James would be familiar to many of you. Each Saturday they perform at the Lyttelton Farmers Market. Jill dances while James plays the keyboard. These Lyttelton locals have a range of amazing skills. Painting is something else they are both very good at and they want to share this talent with the wider community.

"We started painting these about a year ago" said James. The paintings include various cathedral interiors, Larnach Castle and one abstract painting. I wanted to know what inspired their art. Did they copy pictures or did they create them from their memories/imaginations? Jill said "They come from my mind, body, soul and spirit". Their paintings are joint creations. Jill is really good with colours. She also helps with the outlines and some of the painting. James paints and adds his various touches.

Of the paintings in the exhibition the first to be painted was the exterior of Larnach Castle. They were inspired to paint this from a recent visit. Jill is very proud of the range of colours they have chosen for this picture. She points out all the various shades. "Pink is my favourite colour"

James's favourite painting is the one of the interior of Saint Albans Cathedral. There is a family connection for him with this site. He explains that his brother Joe used to visit this church and was christened there. For James this has created a special memory. His favourite colour is purple so naturally that is woven into the pictures as well. Both of them love the stained glass windows in the churches and the high ceilings and they try to capture the beauty of these features in their paintings.

The couple are very proud to have an exhibition. This is the very first time they have displayed their work for the general public. All of the paintings are for sale so they are excited of the possibility of selling some of their work.

Over many years they have attended art classes. For some time they went to classes at Hohepa. In recent years they went to local Lyttelton art therapist Deb Green. Both are really happy to see how good their paintings look in the exhibition. Reuben Romany, the curator at the Lytel Gallery has hung them really well for them.

"It is really awesome to talk about the paintings" says Jill. Both of them leave the Information Centre with big smiles on their faces.

Co creating Collett's Corner.....

Whilst we have some awesome new buildings in Lyttelton we do still have some empty sites, Collett's Corner being one of them. However, there are some exciting plans underway with this corner site and I recently caught up with Julie Lee (aka Jules) to find out more about the project and the company that she is working with, Ohu - The Office for Holistic Urbanism.

Ohu puts people and communities at the heart of property development. Jules advises that Ohu is working with local groups of people to develop assets which will sustain and strengthen their community. Ohu believes it is possible for people with a common purpose to work together to collectively create and own assets that generate both a social and economic value that is returned to the community, to sustain the community.

Ohu Development is working with our Lyttelton community to create a building on the Collett's Corner site that will be collectively owned by the community it supports.

Many of you will know Jules as she has been involved with a number of successful community projects here in Lyttelton over the past 15 years, either having been the lead, or part of a team. These projects include the upgrade of the Lyttelton Playground, the Toy Library Upgrade & Renovations Project, the Lyttelton TimeBank, The Garage Sale, and Lyttelton Harbour Civil Defence.

Jules says that the Collett's Corner project is exciting and innovative. "I couldn't think of a more perfect place to undertake this ground-breaking project, the community that I reside in. The Lyttelton community has many passionate, creative individuals, and groups. Already it's been great catching up with many of these people and drawing out some initial thoughts".

What could we, as a community, invest in collectively on the Collett's Corner site? Would does our community think is missing in Lyttelton (if anything)? Could the site be a series of little shops, businesses and laneways? Accommodation? A car park? A space for small businesses and communities to connect and create in? Hot desk spotting? A green space? An elder circle? A permanent space for the craft market that is currently running on Saturdays? Or could it be a combination of the above ideas? A mixed-use development? Just some thoughts to push start your own creative thinking.

If you want to know more about Ohu, visit their website <http://www.ohu.nz/>

Debut Novel Lyttelton Writer

"It is a story about the artist behind the art. As the cover indicates, the muse is very present. That also makes it a love story.... or, a story about love and life! And art, of course" said newly published Lyttelton writer Yosay Briels.

This is Yosay's first novel. Yosay may be familiar to you from the work she did quite a few years ago as a foundation member on the Lyttelton Schools Charitable Trust. That team of parents went on to publish the most successful Harbour Kitchens Cookbook that became such a great fundraiser for Lyttelton Main and Lyttelton West Schools pre the earthquakes. That was my first recollection of Yosay. The book was amazing and such a stunning success for everyone involved with its production.

Yosay's first novel is historical and a very different genre from the first book that she played such an important role in its production all those years ago for the Primary Schools. "My writing is now inspired by true stories about artists and their art" she said. "My main aim is to tell true stories about the artist and their art. I want to bring the artist to life so the reader can feel part of the life they are reading about".

This book depicts the life of artist Jan Sirks and his model Hillegonda. "My key reason for having a fascination with this artist is because of my interest in early 20th century art movements and Jan Sirks established one of them" she said.

Of Dutch origin herself and with a BA in Art History and French Literature her debut novel has focused naturally on a Dutch subject and art. "It has been amazing journey learning all about the life of this artist. I literally try to live the life of the person to really feel them so that I can create the work" she said.

Luckily for Yosay this has meant returning to the Netherlands and visiting the places that Jan once frequented. "I have listened to his music, studies his fashion, read books he read, poured over diaries and letter he wrote and tried to sample every aspect of his life that I was able to discover through my research".

The Dutch Artist and His Muse tells the true story of the quiet revolutionary artist Jan Sirks who, with the guidance of his muse, paints a highly individual canvas of life and helps pave the way toward greater artistic freedom.

"I believe my book should strike a chord with many people; anyone with an interest in modern European art; those who have a thread of Dutch in their lineage and anyone who likes to read an intriguing story. It starts in 1939, winds back to 1890 and ends in 1939.....".

The Dutch Artist and His Muse is available in Lyttelton at Leslies Bookshop and will retail for $34.95. The book is also available in paperback on-line from Amazon, Book Depository, Angus and Robertson etc. and e-copy (Apple/Kindle/Nook/Kobo) for multiple devices.

Truck exhaust emissions not causing air quality issues for Lyttelton – report

Truck exhaust emissions do not appear to be causing an air quality issue in the Norwich Quay vicinity. This finding comes as the result of a year-long investigation conducted by Environment Canterbury from January 2016 to January 2017, where scientists measured particles and gases at a roadside monitoring station on the corner of Norwich Quay and Canterbury Street.

In 2015, Environment Canterbury was asked by the Lyttelton-Mt Herbert Community Board (now the Banks Peninsula Community Board) to investigate air quality on Norwich Quay due to concerns within the community about perceived pollution caused by trucks travelling on that road. The 12-month investigation's findings were released on 17 July 2017, presented to the Banks Peninsula Community Board.

Over the 12-month period, Environment Canterbury measured particles and gases from its roadside monitoring station and found that emissions from truck exhausts did not appear to be causing an air quality issue on Norwich Quay.

The investigation measured concentrations of two particles – those less than 10 micrometres in diameter (PM10) and those less than 2.5 micrometres in diameter (PM2.5). Particles sizing between PM2.5 and PM10 are referred to as coarse particles and are mainly from dust and marine aerosols. Those less than PM2.5 are a subset referred to as fine particles and are mainly from combustion sources such as woodburners, motor vehicles and industrial boilers.

The gases measured were sulphur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide and carbon monoxide.

“In general, the air quality measured by Environment Canterbury on Norwich Quay was within World Health Organisation and New Zealand guidelines. Additionally, air quality in this area is comparable to other sites monitored throughout Canterbury with fewer fine particles than found in St Albans,” says Katherine Trought, Environment Canterbury director of air quality.

The report explains that the coarse particles on Norwich Quay could be coming from a number of sources, including dust from any vehicle movements on the road and activities in the Port. Most fine particles were likely to be coming from home heating sources as opposed to truck exhaust emissions.

After 1 September 2016, the updated Lyttelton Tunnel Bylaw came into effect, requiring vehicles to cover loose material such as soil, sand and fertilizer. Environment Canterbury's investigation found that there was no noticeable change in coarse particle concentrations following the implementation.

The year-long investigation showed that on six instances during June 2016 the concentration of particles exceeded daily guidelines. On these days, wind speeds were very low and both fine and coarse particles contributed roughly similar amounts to the average concentration. There were a further 11 days when coarse particle concentrations were high, with the wind coming from a southerly direction.

Community and Public Health Survey

As part of our role in promoting and monitoring wellbeing in the Canterbury region, we (Community and Public Health, the Public Health division of the Canterbury District Health Board) are interested in what sources of information about our population's health and wellbeing you either currently use or would find useful.

We are interested in your use of information that describes both health and wellbeing status and information that looks at those factors that may impact on health and wellbeing (such as education, housing and employment). We invite you to complete this 15-20 minute online survey. https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/PopHealthWellbeingProducts\_YourThoughtsSurvey
Completion of the survey is entirely voluntary and you can exit the survey at any time.

Survey data will only be presented in aggregated form. Quotes from free text responses may be presented in a report of findings. Quotes can either attributed to your organisation or, if it is your preference, be anonymous. The survey findings will be used to inform our ongoing work in this area.

We would like as many responses as possible from a broad range of respondents – again, please feel free to share the link with others who may be interested. The survey closes 2-August.

Ground has one more class coming up over winter.

It is The Spice Route. We are looking at the countries and regions along the ancient spice route, learning about the spices and what they go well with. From the Moluccas to Morocco, Egypt to Persia, Kerala to Hanoi, a wide variety of dishes and techniques.

This is on Sunday 13th August. Space is limited, so you will need to book soon if you are interested.

Cost is still only $130 per person which includes the hands-on class, the 4-course dinner with matching drinks and the recipes to take home. Contact info@ground.co.nz

Community Law Canterbury's 'Winter Legal Series'

CLC is holding sessions designed to equip community workers with greater knowledge on rights, access to legal help, and other topics. ## LAF

Lyttelton Arts Factory hosted a "Thank You "evening for friends and supporters to celebrate their first birthday with a fun cabaret evening on July 7th. A big thank you to LAF. Four lucky volunteers from the Lyttelton Information Centre were invited and they enjoyed a great night watching LAF's talented street/circus performers.

Project Lyttelton is planning two new projects 'Repair Café' and 'Library of Things.'

The Repair Café is all about repairing things together in a workshop setting where tools are available for everyone. People can bring their broken goods to the café and get them fixed with the help of expert volunteers from many fields. Do you have a broken toaster or ripped jacket at home? Come and fix it!

The Library of Things will operate in the same way as a common library, but you can check out "things" instead of books! Have you heard about 'The Sharing Depot' in Canada or 'Newtown Tool Library' in Wellington before? If not, you should go check them out.

We are interested in encouraging sustainability of Lyttelton harbour area and would like to know your opinion in order to progress these projects further in a way that meets everyone's needs. Therefore, we have prepared two surveys about Repair Cafes and Library of Things. We would appreciate you helping us fill in these two survey linked below.

Whats Growing in Lytteltons Plantation?

Those pine trees on the hillside up the behind Foster and Gilmour Tces are just low-value pests, right? Yeah, nah.

Those pine trees, also known as the Plantation, were planted back in the 1880s when locals recognised the rockfall hazard that the bare hill presented to Lyttelton's inhabitants.

Rocks and pine trees in the Plantation

Since then, the pine trees have helped to keep the rocks at bay and now they are providing shelter to regenerating native plants.

Deep inside the Plantation, nature lurks

Under the protection of the Plantation, native plants are quietly regenerating - they're not show offs like the in-your-face pine trees but they are coming along nicely. You need to look to see them but they're there doing their thing.

These natives are special because they are self-introduced from the immediate ecological area and, one day, these upstarts will take over the job of protecting the town from those unstable rocks...and they'll do something that the pine trees can't: provide food and habitat for other natives.

So, the next time you're walking or scrambling around in the Plantation take some time to see what's really growing on.

Seed: The Untold Story!

Winner of many international awards.

Friday August 4th 7.15pm at The Portal, 54A Oxford St, Lyttelton, up the drive between the playground and the swimming pool. Koha appreciated, or Timebank trade.

In the last century, 94% of our seed varieties have disappeared. As biotech chemical companies control the majority of our seeds, farmers, scientists, lawyers, and indigenous seed keepers fight a David and Goliath battle to defend the future of our food. SEED tells the story of passionate seed-keepers working to protect our 12,000-year-old food legacy by preserving the diversity of our seed stock. As one seed saver puts it, "genetic diversity is the hedge between us and global famine." One of the two Director/Producers is Taggart Siegel, who has strong connections to Banks Peninsula and has made very famous films in the past: Queen of the Sun, The Real Dirt on Farmer John, The Disenchanted Forest.
