Review Creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

Antarctic Season Opening festival lands in city

The Antarctic's summer season is being cleared for take-off with a festival that celebrates Christchurch's connection to the ice.

As the United States Antarctic Program returns to the city, the Antarctic Season Opening festival offers the opportunity to learn more about the frozen continent.

The Antarctic Season Opening is being marked with a series of events across Christchurch.

Step on board Antarctic aircraft and meet the crews before they head south. Check out a US Air Force C-17, a RNZAF C130 Hercules or the historic Trans-Antarctic Expedition DHC-2 Beaver. It's all happening on Saturday, 7 October on the tarmac at Christchurch International Airport.

Among the other festival highlights will be the arrival of the C-17 on Thursday, 5 October. Remember to keep an eye on the sky from 2pm.

Find out more about life on the world's coldest continent and Christchurch's role as a gateway city.

Exhibitions, talks and workshops will cover a range of Antarctic-related topics throughout the festival from late September to early November.

In Lyttelton, a heritage walk on 8 October will visit local sites connected to the Antarctic expeditions of Robert Falcon Scott and Ernest Shackleton.

Making the most of the school holidays, Ara will host Antarctic Ecobots, a free interactive workshop for year nine and 10 students, and Mission to Antarctica, a free engineering workshop where older students can experience the ice in virtual reality.

For younger children, Into the White tells the story of Scott's Terra Nova expedition to Antarctica. Appearing at libraries across the city, author Joanna Grochowicz will take children on an interactive journey to learn about the value of teamwork, curiosity and resilience.

Where is the Timebank Buzzing? Lyttelton Primary School

This term Lyttelton Primary School students from year 5 to 8 have been getting a better understanding of the Timebank. Aided by a generous community building grant the Timebank team have been able to dedicate coordinator Jill Larking to the task. "Working with the children began with an interesting workshop with the help of Margaret Jefferies. From that time there has been three sessions with the children working out a plan forward" Jill said.

There are a core group of fifteen students shaping the Lyttelton School Timebank within the school. The group's first task was to create a logo for the group to use. That's complete and you can see the result. "This team decided that their key role is to get staff and students learning about the Timebank and then getting people to sign up and trade" Jill said.

The first project to enable their goals to be achieved focused around a school market day. "Market day linked to one of the schools overall learning goals looking at entrepreneurship. The whole school participated in the market day and 53 staff and students signed up to the new school Timebank", Jill said. The Timebank Primary School team used this as an opportunity for education around timebanking and signing up fellow students and staff. They were really successful. At this stall, students with the aid of an art project showed that the Timebank was all about people working together. Eva Sequeira created these great little pipe figures to give away to new members. At the end of the session the Timebank stall proved to be very popular.

Jill is now exploring how to sign everyone up. She is creating a Timebank within a Timebank. She's able to separate the School Timebank from the main Lyttelton community timebank. Trading will start at the beginning of Term 4. All the new members will be signed up and then trading can begin.

Meantime Timebanking is being integrated into so many of the projects at the school. If you were lucky enough to attend the fashion show quite a few of the students will be earning credits for the school for helping out. "Nico Mateer was a great contributor being the official photographer for the night. Others helped with make-up, modelling and organisation" said Jill. The parent hub is also being linked to the project. "We really want to see all activities where people help one another within the school, linked to the Timebank" she said.

Jill's role is also aiding the community as an interface between the community and the school. Our community is always keen to work alongside the school. In the past teacher Rachel Cummins has had to facilitate this work. With Jill's children Jamie, Jonathan and Annabel at the school she has already fostered great relationships with the teachers so she is trusted to facilitate community interaction. This has seen Lyttelton Primary School participate in a planting day at Urumau Reserve. Fifteen children were lucky to be instructed by fellow students on how to plant natives. Timecredits will be earned by the school with this activity. She has also worked with the student council. "The students just love people asking them for their views. It's happened twice this term with Third Year Geography students from the University of Canterbury finding students ideas on walking and cycling to the Recreation Ground and OHU asking for ideas for a new building on London Street"

Next term more opportunities will become available at the Community Garden, Recreation Centre and the Twenty One Day Challenge. Watch this space to see what happens as the school explores so many opportunities with their own Timebank and continue trading in the community.

Lyttel Fashion Show

What a Success

What a great evening. Ruth Targus and Michelle Parkes from the Garage Sale decided it was time for an event and some extra fund raising. Partnering Lyttelton Primary School the pair hosted the first Lyttel Fashion Show. "It all came together wonderfully and it was so lovely to see such a diverse group of people at the show" Ruth said.

It was an evening where everyone was smiling and the event achieved the goals that it set out to accomplish. The show was organised to raise the profile of the garage sale, fundraise for the school and the garage sale and boost the profile of second hand clothing. It achieved all this plus more. $1400 was raised and that is shared between the school and the garage sale.

"Michelle and I would like to thank everyone who made the show so successful" said Ruth. Every model had their hair styled. Honeycomb's Carolyn and Tracey and Hairport's Megan and Monica did all that work. Similarly all the models had their make-up done. Lincoln of Lady lovecraft, Sal and Emma from Lyttel Beauty had that all under control. The show could not have looked so professional without the help of Daryl from LAF and Nico Mateer took all these wonderful shots that accompany this article. Last but not least they thanked all the volunteer models from the garage sale and the school plus all the other volunteers who worked to make the night such as success.

EVENTS

An Opportunity to Get Intimate with Nature Banks Peninsula Walking Festival Returns

From humble beginnings around Lyttelton Harbour it's great to see this festival evolve into its fifth year as a Peninsula wide event. Over the years the urban focus of the walks has changed and there is a much greater emphasis for getting out into nature and exploring so many amazing places on the entire Peninsula. As in previous years this great festival will run every weekend in November.

"Many of the places that you get the opportunity to visit are only possible during the festival" said event organizer Sue French. Sue is organizing the festival for the first time. Close community connections mean that many farming families are happy to open their properties so that the wider community can experience their daily environments. The entire event is a collaboration of Peninsula organizations who have an interest in promoting our great place. Project Lyttelton, Rod Donald Trust, Akaroa District Promotions and Little River Waiewa Community Trust all collaborate together to make this once a year event happen. Keeping these relationships strong is part of the success of the festival.

Suky Thompson, the Rod Donald Trust Manager has held the vision of the festival for the past couple of years. She's in an amazing role that gives her a bird's eye view on all the recreational possibilities for the area. This year the team decided that they would focus on the amazing recovery of nature after fire. This festival offers you the chance to see great examples of regeneration at Hinewai, Ohinetahi and Urumau Reserves.

The major celebratory walking event in 2017 focuses on Hinewai Reserve close to Akaroa. Under the guidance of conservationist Hugh Wilson this reserve has been left for nature to do its wonders for thirty years! Suky will be leading a five hour walk of this amazing place on the first weekend of the festival and Hugh Wilson will lead a walk on the last weekend showcasing a new walk that has been developed in the reserve for the re-routed Banks Peninsula Track.

Around Akaroa Harbour and Little River there is a great selection of other walking opportunities to choose from. If you aren't so keen to go so far afield there are plenty of walks around Lyttelton Harbour. Some highlights include Dr Chris Challies famous penguin walk around Godley Head. Darren Tatum is leading his popular food foraging tour at Orton Bradley Park and Sue-Ellen Sandilands will be hosting her back yard walk in Lyttelton. Pete Ozich will guide people in Diamond Harbour. Pete is the inspiration for a great community designed short cut path to Diamond Harbour School. This walk features native plantings that have been nurtured from seeds that he has collected. Wendy Everingham will lead a popular walk in Urumau Reserve Lyttelton. A botanical explorer with snippets on geological, heritage and regeneration features. Similarly Mike White will take visitors around Ohinetahi Reserve above Governors Bay to show how that land scape is regenerating since the Port Hills fires. Mario and Liliana have their sketching ramble and so it goes.

For information about all the varied walks a detailed festival programme is now available. Pop into the library or the Lyttelton Information Centre for your copy. Like last year tickets must be booked online through Eventfinda. When you book your ticket will give a link to additional event information detailing meeting points, things to bring etc. for you to download. You can also download the entire programme from www.bpwalks.co.nz If you need more information please contact event organizer Sue Church bpwalkingfest@gmail.com

Occasional night time closures for Lyttelton Tunnel

For a few nights each month until December 2018, the Lyttelton Tunnel will be down to one lane, and occasionally both lanes will need to be closed. These traffic lane closures are required as work begins on a $28.7 million fire protection upgrade inside the Lyttelton Tunnel, to increase the safety and resilience of this essential freight route for both Christchurch and Canterbury. Please allow extra travel time. Emergency access through the tunnel will still be provided during all lane closures.

For more information, please visit: <http://www.nzta.govt.nz/projects/lyttelton-tunnel/fire-protection-upgrade/>

Christchurch Enviro Hub

A working group has been formed to bring back a Christchurch environment centre (the Christchurch Enviro Hub). We are currently setting up the charitable trust and trustees amongst other things. To help us see who is interested in the Christchurch Enviro Hub, we are asking for environmental organisations to register their support with us.

We would love you to register if your organisation supports the Trust's vision; and/or would be interested in visiting or using the Hub when it is open. When you have registered your organisation, you will be able to (if desired) vote in any elections held and help develop the strategic direction and planning of the Trust. This involves no cost or commitment. Organisations can deregister at any time. Simply fill out this form or email your details to info@chchenvirohub.org to register your interest.

For more information on the project please read the project proposal or visit our Facebook page: www.facebook.com/christchurchenvirohub. To subscribe to newsletters, please click on this link: <http://facebook.us16.list-manage1.com/>

Organisations Who Trade with a Social Mission

Survey Closes 6 October Christchurch City Council would like to invite you to fill in a survey for organisations Canterbury-wide who trade with a social mission. This can be through the likes of selling goods or services, renting facilities or contracts for service. For the purpose of this survey we are calling any trading of goods and services 'an enterprise'.

It's our hope that these survey results will inform us on how to grow and support this sector and help us raise the profile of the work you are already doing. A summary of the information will be available to networks and others in the sector such as Akina and the Rata Foundation. Please enter your contact details if you wish to be informed about the results and any outcomes from the survey. The survey takes no more than a couple of minutes. Please click on the link <https://ccc.tfaforms.net/170> and fill in your details.

Advertising in the Review

Since the inception of the Lyttelton Review we have been very generous with advertising. Any one off advertisements for businesses have generally been published free. Advertisers are encouraged to make a donation to our volunteer organisation.

Whoops....

In our last edition we had an article "A Day at Anderson's Farm". John accidentally sent us the wrong photo. Ian McLennan the Chair of Otamahua/Quail Island Ecological Restoration Trust wrote to say, "The photograph accompanying the article was taken on Quail Island in 1929, and the huskies were from Commander Byrd's 1928 to 1930 Antarctic expedition. Port Chalmers was chosen as the base for Byrd's expedition, and Quarantine Island in Otago Harbour was used to accommodate the expedition's 80 dogs. Fifteen dogs were transferred to Quail Island around March 1929 before being sent to Mt Cook for training in July 1929. More information and photographs of the dogs on Quail Island are in the history book "Otamahua / Quail Island - a Link with the Past".

Thank you Ian for spotting that!

Your guide to holiday fun

These holidays have rolled around faster than expected but don't panic, there are plenty of family-friendly events on offer.

- The holidays are a great time to celebrate our city and The Streets for People party in Cathedral Square kicks things off on Sunday 1 October from 10am until 5pm with stalls, markets, food, entertainment and water activities for the kids to enjoy, including bouncy castles, water walkers and bumper boats.
- Spring is your chance to get back into nature and the Breeze Walking Festival 30 September to 15 October includes several events targeted at kids and families. Christchurch City Libraries staff will be telling stories at two events, Going on a Bear Hunt - Monday 2 October, and Gruffalo Explorer - Wednesday 4 October.
- Take a trip over the hill - the Akaroa French Fest is on from 6 to 8 October. At Akaroa Library, there is a French Flavour Storytimes and Craft on Friday 6th October 11am to 12pm presented by Rémy Barbier. There's a Friday night street party, and a whānau day at Onuku Marae.
- Wet days these holidays could be your best opportunity to take the kids to the theatre - the Court Theatre has The Ugly Duckling, Southern Ballet has its Best of 2017 Showcase from 30 September to 1 October, and the stage show Horrible Histories: Barmy Britain suitable for children aged seven to 12 is at the Isaac Theatre Royal on 14 October.
- Celebrate Christchurch's Antarctic links at the Antarctic Air Day at Christchurch International Airport on Saturday October 7 from 10am until 4pm. It's part of the Antarctic Season Opening festival and offers the chance to climb on board aircraft, meet huskies and try on Antarctic clothing.
- The Libraries are also hosting a range of Antarctic-themed activities in the holidays including Antarctic Storytimes, Penguin bookmarks, 3D print your favourite Antarctic animal, Beebots, Make a cardboard Scott Base and Aurora Australis Chalk Art. The Antarctic Office is bringing Joanna Grochowicz, author of Into the white: Scott's Antarctic Odyssey to Christchurch to run a series of free talks at local libraries for children aged seven to 12. She will demonstrate the value of teamwork, curiosity and resilience in the context of Antarctic exploration through interactive play and the use of props. The talks are on 3, 4, and 5 October.
- Go historic - Beca Heritage Week(external link) is on from 13 October and the busy programme of events includes City of Cycles on Sunday 15 October, the last Sunday of the holidays. Enjoy a family fun day at the Christchurch Arts Centre with music, entertainment, films and an exhibition. There will be a library display in the Classics building and children can travel through the dark star tunnel for storytime sessions. Also part of Heritage Week is Games from the Past at Ferrymead Heritage Park, which features schoolyard games and old fashioned children's toys on Friday 13 October.
- Visit the Botanic Gardens and put your nature ninja skills to the test Wild Eyes Mission from 10am until 2pm on Saturday October 14 as part of Conservation Week. Bring your phone, your best selfie-fun-face and your sense of adventure. Visit Mission HQ and 'The Lab' at the old Information Centre (beside the duck pond) to check out some science displays and pick up your mission map.
- Also at the Botanic Gardens, but running throughout the holidays, is It's a Wold Life self-guided discovery trail which highlights some the animals who live in the gardens. Pick up a free booklet from the Visitor Centre and follow the trail, which is aimed at children five to 10 years old.
- Get a dose of art in the city SCAPE Public Art Season runs from 7 October to 18 November. The Scape Season Opening Day: Heller's Family Event is at the Margaret Mahy Playground on Saturday 7 October from 10am to 2pm. There will be free art activities, giveaways and entertainment from the NZ Secondary Students Choir along with Scape's new artworks.
- For creative kids, Christchurch Art Gallery has an activity that's inspired by its current Len Lye exhibition, and like Lye's work, combines sound and movement. Lets Get Loud, involves messy painting and tying and gluing together a colourful mobile. For ages 6-12, it takes about an hour and is on weekdays October 2 to October 13. Bookings required (cost is $8 per child).

History of the Lyttelton Wellington Ferry Service (Continued) Part 3

When the Union Steamship Company began operating two ships on a regular basis between Wellington and Lyttelton in October 1905, they utilised ships built for other services, most of which were nearing the end of their lives. To complement the new main trunk railway service between Auckland and Wellington a vessel purpose built for the Lyttelton Wellington Service named Maori was commissioned in 1907. Over the next four years business on the route increased to such an extent that a second new ship was required, larger than the Maori but just as fast and comfortable. When the order was placed in November 1911, it was inevitable that the contract would be awarded to William Denny and Brothers of Dumbarton, who built the Maori among many other fine ships for the Union Line.

The ship was to be named Wahine, meaning the wife, and since it would be partnering the Maori was considered very apt. The new vessel was designed by Captain McDonald a former Union Line Master who had been appointed Marine Superintendent by the Company.

At 4,436 gross tons, she was powered by eight Babcock & Wilcox 200 psi water tube boilers supplying three Parsons steam turbines driving her triple screws to give a speed of 21 knots. During her trials, she achieved 21.23 knots at 532rpm, which was above that stipulated in the contract. The steam turbines were arranged with the centre one being high pressure, the port and starboard turbines each being low pressure with each low pressure shaft being fitted with a reversing turbine for going astern. She had a bow rudder, carried 362 tons of coal and a complement of 110.

The improvements over the Maori included water tube boilers, which burned Australian coal well. In addition, her open deck was enclosed to increase the number of passengers. This gave her the possibility of carrying an extra 82 first and 178 second class passengers when needed. The vessel initially had cabins for 592 passengers in two classes and a further 206 berths in open accommodation. She was licensed to carry 1,531 day passengers.

There are many significant dates in the life of the Wahine ending up with a catastrophic event in 1951, but not in New Zealand Waters. The full story of the Wahine will be continued in the next edition of Ship's Telegraph.

Article Ships Telegraph No 10 Clive Knightley

Light

Light streamed into her eyes. Winter was over. No more the trickling damp of condensation, the air thick from paltry attempts to rescue bones from deep cold, skin rippled with shivers. No more the clarity of outline on the horizon, contrasting with intricate branches, trees stripped bare. No more the solace of evenings drawing close, the cocooning ritual of warm fabric nestling arms that hold the last steaming mug of a shortened day.

She looked up at the sun's orb peering over the brow of the hill, throwing light in slivers into her long darkened kitchen. Suddenly every object was thrown into relief, some still in shadow, others bright and emboldened, taking the stage and declaring their liberation. Silver surfaces bounced their reflective light and she had to turn her eyes away. Too soon, too sudden. She liked a slower transition in all things.

Yet slowly she adjusted, and her heart gladdened and welcomed the change. It had been a hard winter, filled with grief and struggle, yet rich within that. Within that challenge, the contest between fighting realities that could not be altered, and the ability to accept what is. To surrender. Winter had been a good time for that. The quietness, the inward glow that slowly grew unnoticed, but powerfully present. Now it was time to move forward.

A time for renewal.

She looked fascinated at the light falling on her pale arms. She felt the warmth, beckoning her forwards into the day. A day more robust than the one before, less hesitant. She looked out at the unfurling leaves and straightened, slowly moving towards the door. Throwing it open, she stepped across the threshold, light flooding her being.

Lyttelton by Rail: Beca Heritage Week (13–23 October)

Beca Heritage Week is looming large and it's the 150th anniversary of the Lyttelton Rail Tunnel.

Lyttelton Museum and Lyttelton Library are celebrating with an exhibition, Lyttelton by Rail, but they also want to hear your stories.

Have you been through the Lyttelton Rail Tunnel by train? Did you live in Lyttelton and go to school or work on the train? Did you ever catch the Wellington ferry after a train ride? Do you have photos from those times?

Come along to the exhibition at the Lyttelton Library 14–21 October. There'll be historical information, photos and even a video featuring a few locals talking about their school days on the train.

There will also be an opportunity for you to record your own thoughts and memories. If you would rather share your stories via film or audio, then come on down and fill in a booking sheet and one of our volunteers will be delighted to talk to you in person.

In the meantime, have a wander down memory lane, across the tracks and through the Lyttelton Rail Tunnel, and let us know what you re-discover. Perhaps you might even have a train-related object hiding under a bed or a photo lurking at the back of a cupboard that could be added to the Museum's archives?

Lyttelton Museum is in the business of collecting, sharing and celebrating stories of the Harbour area and its people. We look forward to meeting you!

Expect night-time traffic delays at the Lyttelton Tunnel

If you are driving at night through the Lyttelton Tunnel, expect occasional delays from later this month through until December 2018.

For a few nights each month, just one traffic lane in the tunnel will be open and on occasions both traffic lanes will need to be closed.

These traffic lane closures are required as work begins on a $28.7 million fire protection upgrade inside the Lyttelton Tunnel, to increase the safety and resilience of this essential freight route for both Christchurch and Canterbury.

A project of this scale and complexity makes some traffic lane closures inside the tunnel unavoidable. They are needed so hundreds of water nozzles that are an integral part of the fire protection upgrade can be installed in the tunnel ceiling. To minimise disruptions for tunnel users, the work will be done at night when traffic flows are lightest.

HOW TO PLAN FOR THESE DELAYS

- A three-monthly calendar for all planned night-time single lane closures and full closures will be available at nzta.govt.nz/projects/lyttelton-tunnel/
- Lane closure details will be displayed on electronic message boards at the tunnel at least two days before they happen.
- Closures are planned to the best of the project team's ability, but may be subject to change.

- Allow extra time for tunnel travel on these dates.
- Emergency access through the tunnel will still be provided during all traffic lane closures.
- Most full tunnel traffic lane closures will be from March 2018.
- Real-time traffic information for the Lyttelton Tunnel area can be found at www.tfc.govt.nz

i For more information about the Lyttelton Tunnel fire protection upgrade, go to www.nzta.govt.nz/projects/lyttelton-tunnel/
Find up-to-date information on road conditions, delays and closures at www.nzta.govt.nz/traffic and on the Transport Agency's official Twitter and Facebook pages www.nzta.govt.nz/contact-us/connect-with-us/.

For traffic and travel information, you can also call 0800 4 HIGHWAYS (0800 44 44 49) to speak to the call centre team.

New Craft - Coop in Margaret Stoddart Cottage.

The Stoddart Cottage Gallery is a new venture under the Stoddart Trust and opened quietly on the 19th August.

Local craftspeople and artists joined together to exhibit and sell their pieces.

They have beautifully redone the back room which now functions as a Gallery - Shop.

Come and pop in, visit your local Craft Store and meet your local craftspeople. We are open Saturdays and Sundays 10am - 4pm.

Mark your diaries! A Grand Opening is planned for Labour Weekend! Stay up to date and follow us on facebook: Stoddart Cottage Gallery

biketober

Christchurch, 1-31 October

Over 50 events being organised around all things bicycle

That's a lot of great reasons to hop on your bike this spring!

What is Biketober?

Welcome to Biketober (a fusion of bike + October), a celebration of cycling. Conceived by volunteers and cycling advocates, it's a way of bringing together all things bike-related in Christchurch this October. We'd like to show you the many opportunities to get involved in cycling, in whatever way you choose.

What's happening?

The Biketober team (with support from Christchurch City Council and NZTA) have developed a diverse programme of bicycling events. There are guided rides (on- and off-road), social activities (pedal-powered cinema, cargo bike rally), go-by-bike breakfasts, bike-repair workshops and more. Most events are free.

Some events happen anyway, but we think it's worth giving them a plug; some of them are Biketober 'specials', organised by volunteer groups; and some are bigger events we're linking up with, like Avon Ōtākaro's family event 'Meet in the Middle', the BECA Heritage week and the NZ Bike Expo. There's a Biketober Passport in the making. You can get your passport stamped at 16 participating venues, then drop it in at the Expo for a chance to win some great prizes.

Who's it for?

Biketober is for anyone interested in cycling, whatever your bike or your purpose. You might be new to cycling, looking for advice and ways to get going. Perhaps you're a cycle commuter, a family of cyclists, or a cycle enthusiast. Maybe you'd like to meet others who just enjoy being out and about by bike.

Find out more

Check out the programme and updates on our website: biketober.nz/christchurch (When you're there, you might spot that we share our site with Auckland. Yep, they had the same idea, so we decided to put a national spin on it and share the site.)

Submit an event

Whether big or small, if you're running an event that has bikes in it, we'd like to hear from you. Hop on to our website and submit your event details from the main page.

Help out!

A great support crew can make an event run seamlessly. If you can spare a couple of hours (or more, or less) to help with a ride, distribute some promotional material, or you're not sure how to help but know you'd like to, get in touch via the link on our website or drop an email to biketober@gmail.com.
