A big thank you goes out to all the contributors and our funders Rata Foundation and Christchurch City Council Strengthening Communities who enable the hard copies to be printed each edition. Similarly to Wendy Everingham for writing and editing and Jenny-Lee Love for design and production.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

From the Review Team

MERRY CHRISTMAS LYTTELTON HARBOUR.

Thank you for supporting the Lyttelton Review in 2019. We produced 22 issues this year! We have nearly 1000 on line subscribers, 200 reading via the facebook page, 160 who gain the benefit of hard copies and a host of readers via Issuu.

We think you like what we do!

It's been great to get some new contributors during the year. Thank you to Alex Hallat and Chats Duncan for their regular contributions.

A quick glance over the year. What has happened in this community over the year? It's been great to see our young people getting more opportunities.

The newly formed Youth Groups have been a positive step forward. The re-opening of Sumner Road has seen Lyttelton and Sumner connected more easily again. That's had a big impact on both townships. As always there have been many interesting art initiatives. The creation of Ka Awatea the new winter celebration and the Tuia 250 event saw Lyttelton township and Rāpaki working really closely together. Naval Point finally seems to have some energy behind it for an upgrade and some decent funding has been approved by the council to make that happen. The Governors Bay Jetty is being restored, Ripapa Island opened again and quite a few heritage homes were restored. There's been lots of native restoration work around the Harbour and Whaka Ora Healthy Harbour is driving even more of that.

Thanks to you all for a great year. We have enjoyed telling your stories and we both wish you all a Happy Christmas and relaxing holiday season. Both of us will have a long break over summer. We return again February 4th.

Wendy and Jenny-Lee.

OPTIMUM SPARKLE!

It was Sue's idea. She felt passionate about mindfulness and meditation and her own business in coaching and public speaking and wondered what other practitioner in Diamond Harbour had on offer. She wanted to get together with some people to brainstorm about the goodies of Diamond Harbour and how to get them to the people. Not talking about sweets here. No: skills, talents, techniques. Skill sharing in a supportive environment and putting Diamond Harbour firmly on the map for everyone who would be interested in learning something new to live life with more sparkle. Sue talked with several practitioners and with Katie and Margreet started to plan the first Symposium.

"Diamond Harbour has a lot to offer" says Sue, "and some of it is hidden." This first mini Symposium will give some of the local services and groups a chance to shine and introduce people to their particular skills and passions.

Sunday Two Two Twenty Twenty is the date to experience Optimum Sparkle, a kaleidoscope of activities. Sue will set the ball rolling and introduce participants to some simple strategies to make better connections, followed by a light meditation. Katie starts the music and guides people into movement. When the music stops there is an opportunity to experience different workshops. Achieving goals, Flax weaving, Body re-alignment, Sound healing, Storytelling, Aroma therapy, New Foods, Stress Less, Tai Chi and more. Food is an important part of the enjoyment and there will be plenty of opportunities to enjoy the teas on offer and eat a scrumptious lunch which is included in the very affordable fee of $45 for the whole day, with concessions available, including an early bird for two!

In a time where we are all concerned about our footprint, the possibility to take bus and ferry to sunny Diamond Harbour for a sparkling day out is appealing. For Canterbury locals and visitors it is 'Just far enough away'.

Take the ten to ten ferry for a 10.00 start and return at 4 with skills to be more of an optimist in 2020. Says Sue: "At the end of this day participants may go home with more focus and a goodie bag of experiences, which may help them live life with less stress. They may want to repeat some of the experiences and return to the sunny side of the harbour. Locals may have gained more idea what is available here. What is for sure is that it will have been a unique experience for young and old"

If you would like to make this an even more relaxing experience, book one of the beautiful holiday homes for a weekend retreat. Please see DiamondHarbour.info for local accommodation or Airbnb. Tickets are available now. A great Xmas present in a time when we don't want to give more stuff but rather offer experiences. DISCOVER MEXICO IN LYTTELTON

MEXICAN CASA

New Lyttelton resident Claudia Guerra brings her Mexican culture to life with her food business Mexican Casa. What started as a workshop has now evolved into an evening of cooking school come cultural extravaganza, party and social gathering.

“I run these one off events for individuals or corporate groups. On one occasion in Sumner I had 60 dentists. I hired the Surf Life Saving Club and armed with twelve blenders we set about making tortilla sauces and having fun together”.

The workshops are really hands on. Claudia helps you create the food for your event. You eat your own buffet feast and in between times you enjoy the odd margarita, dance and have fun. Naturally all the food is inspired from her former life in Mexico.

“In Mexico every region has their own food specialities. There are thirty two states and each with their own culture and dialect. I tap into my knowledge to create food evenings with authentic Mexican food that many of you would never have tried before”.

Claudia brings many of her former employment skills to this business. She was a graphic designer in Mexico. Her skills are evident if you take a look at her promotional material. She keeps herself up to date and is currently helping at Science Alive with their logo development and marketing.

Claudia’s family, husband and two children immigrated to New Zealand from Mexico City six years ago. They came looking for a better life for their two teenage children. Just to put that in context they moved from a city of 24 million people to Christchurch home of half a million!

“New Zealand embraced us” she said. Since arriving they have lived in Hornby and Rolleston . Recently they moved to Lyttelton.

“Since arriving in New Zealand we have always come to the Lyttelton Harbour area. It’s the best place. We think it is really incredible and we really want to stay”.

The Guerra’s are another family looking to purchase their family home in this area. They want to make this place their home but just need to find a house they can afford. Claudia has specifically contacted The Review for this reason. If you are thinking of selling, this might be the family for you.

Naturally Claudia is full of Latin American enthusiasm to both live and work here. She really encourages anyone who is interested in Mexican food and culture to get in touch. She’s happy to tailor her Mexican feasts for large or smaller groups and enjoys working with clients.

“I haven’t run one of my workshops in Lyttelton yet. Are you going to be the first to try my Mexican extravaganza?”

SEAFARERS' CHRISTMAS

Seafarers arriving in the port of Lyttelton this Christmas will receive something special.

The Lyttelton Seafarers' Centre has been making up shoe boxes full of practical gifts for crews visiting the Centre.

"Seafarers are at sea for up to ten months of the year," says Jess Armstrong manager of the Lyttelton Seafarers' Centre. "Many will spend Christmas away from home and won't be receiving any presents."

The Centre is currently collecting small gifts such as caps, pens, sweets and NZ souvenirs for the Christmas boxes. "We want to share the spirit of the season, and offer a warm Kiwi welcome to those missing their families at this time," says Jess.

Gifts can be dropped off at the Lyttelton Seafarers Centre, 18 Norwich Quay, between 7pm to 9pm.

SOUTH KOREANS LEARN FROM LYTTTELTON

When time bank organisers in South Korea heard of a conference being organised to talk about empowering communities in the wake of disaster they suggested Margaret Jefferies be invited to speak on the experiences with disaster in Lyttelton/Christchurch. The host of the forum was looking for a case where victims actively participated as agents of social reconstruction and healing.

Margaret travelled with Project Lyttelton board member Anne Mackay in November to attend the conference and visit time banks in South Korea. The conference was hosted by the 4.16 Foundation, created in response to a ferry disaster, and it addressed “Contemplating Victims Rights in a Risk Society” “The 4.16 Foundation has formed around the Sewol,” Margaret said. “They wanted to look at “How can we prevent disasters, how can we manage them better?,” she said.

Many in the audience were families of the children killed in the 2014 Sewol tragedy and were new to the concept and practice of time banking. The first day was visits to the memorial sites, the second day was the presentations and the third day was questions and answers.

The overloaded South Korean ferry MV Sewol capsized on April 16, 2014 with 476 passengers on board. Three hundred and four people died including 250 children who were out on a school trip. It became evident in the wake of the disaster the ship was never safe for purpose and on top of that was grossly overloaded with unsecured cargo and inadequate ballast. The official rescue response was heavily criticised. Many families of victims feel angry at the lack of accountability on all levels and feel unheard.

Margaret presented a talk, ‘Recent disasters in New Zealand and how we are coping in a humane way’, on the role the Time Bank played in the aftermath of the earthquakes. She also spoke on her work with the Christchurch Muslim community about moving forward together in an empowered way after the March 15 terrorist attack. “In times of disaster there is room for both the heroic type large scale actions AND the human scale compassionate people focused activities. Both are needed but sometimes big overpowers small. But we are learning,” she said.

Margaret said the people were beautiful and the memorials were very moving. “There were people from other disasters there too. It sounds heavy but it wasn’t really. It was about seeing patterns and overcoming them,” Margaret said. Margaret welcomed the interest shown in time banking at the conference. “It was really good having Anne there too with her legal background, particularly with the questions around some of the legal aspects of the disasters,” Margaret said.

The rest of the trip was meeting with people from time banks in Seoul and Gumi. The time banks in South Korea have been set up to work with specific communities. In Seoul the church based time bank focuses a lot of its efforts around people with special needs, the church community has also pooled money to buy a house for youth accommodation. “It’s very practical, big stuff really,” Margaret said. The time bank in Gumi is associated with a senior club. It’s very active with around 1800 members. “A scheme in South Korea sees seniors paid for up to 15 hours per month if they want to continue work, and if they do more they can do it through the time bank,” Margaret said. “It’s really interesting seeing different time banks using the same tools different ways.”

COLLABORATING IN A NEW WAY - THINKING IN SYSTEMS

Project Lyttelton's Communications co-ordinator Anneleise Hall recently toured a wide range of community projects in the USA to learn more about what others were doing and see how mutual aid networks worked in practice.

Mutual aid networks help organisations and individuals create webs of connections and resources and build mutually supportive relationships based on shared values and common interests.

This is supported by a tech framework that creates easy ways to connect and share information, inspire and support each other, trade with time/money and distribute resources.

Project Lyttelton is hosting an event in the fourth week of February to share more about what Anneleise learned in the USA. She will present a summary of the tour and the common themes in the communities they visited. PL will also create the opportunity for people to creatively explore some of the ideas in a local context.

You/your organisation are warmly invited to register interest and also let us know whether day or evening is preferable.
Email: anneleise@lyttelton.net.nz

We will be in contact late January with an update to anyone interested and publish more details in the February PL Newsletter on Feb 1.

COLLETT'S CORNER HOT TOPICS

Resource Consent

If you support Collett's Corner, and would like to see this project built in Lyttelton, now is your chance to tell the Christchurch City Council what you think. The resource consent is open for public consultation until January 16th, visit <https://ccc.govt.nz/the-council/consultations-and-submissions/haveyoursay/show/279>

The trigger for the public notification is due to the appearance of the building. The Council would prefer to see more variation in the façade. As a result, we will change the façade materials. The buildings will be clad in panelised metal, each building will have a unique pattern. This will make each of the buildings appear different yet related. We are currently studying the colour and pattern of the metal cladding. We will circulate updated drawings of the building as soon as we have a confirmed design.

We will host two sessions to answer questions about the resource consent process and application. If you have questions please join us 18 December from 6-7pm or 14 January from 6-7pm at Eruption Bar in Lyttelton. If you cannot make these times please email through your questions. REDUCING THE RISK OF FIRE YOUR HOUSE.

With summer here many residents are thinking about how to reduce the risk of fire to their property.

This useful guide was on the Fire Emergency New Zealand web site. www.checkitsalright.nz
www.fireandemergency.nz

PARTS OF THE HOME	RECOMMENDATIONS FOR REDUCING THE RISK OF FIRE
Roof	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Remove overhanging branches • Remove branches within 3 metres of your chimney • Clean all dead leaves and needles from your roof and gutters • Consider installing spark-arrestor mesh in chimneys
Windows	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Clear thick vegetation within 10 metres of windows • Consider double-glazing in windows that face large areas of vegetation • Limit the size and number of windows in your home that face large areas of vegetation • Consider solid shutters made of non-flammable material
Eaves, vents and openings	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cover the outside attic and under-floor vents with corrosion-resistant, 3mm wire mesh • Cover eaves, attic and under-floor with solid, non-flammable, protective shutters • Have inside access to attics and crawlspaces to put out spot fires that may occur
Balconies, decks and porches	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Build balconies and deck surfaces with non-combustible materials • Enclose eaves, balconies and undersides of overhangs with 12mm non-flammable sheathing • Build stilts from non-combustible material – heavy timbers are best
Inside your home	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Install multipurpose dry powder extinguishers in the house and outbuildings • Install smoke alarms and make sure they are clean and working • Install an internal domestic sprinkler system
Kitchen	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Keep the stovetop clean and free of any spilled fats or burnt foods. • Clean rangehood filters regularly cleaned. • Make sure there's a fire extinguisher near the kitchen and you know how to use it.

THE GARDEN
Make sure emergency services can get to you in an emergency To reduce the risk of fire in your garden, establish priority zones around your home. Priority zones are areas around your home will help reduce the risk of fire damaging or destroying your home. In zone 1 (10 metres around your house), mow your lawns, grow fire-resistant plants, clean gutters and remove leaves and twigs. In zone 2 (10-30 metres around your house), reduce the number of trees, space out remaining trees so they aren't touching each other, prune branches up to 2 metres from the ground and remove branches near power lines.

WATERCOLOURS BY DON MCARA

STODDART COTTAGE GALLERY, DIAMOND HARBOUR

NEW YEARS DAY – 2 FEBRUARY 2020

Paintings of Banks Peninsula places by Don McAra will be on show at Stoddart Cottage Gallery, Diamond Harbour, throughout January.

The exhibition includes a series of richly-coloured representational paintings of familiar Banks Peninsula scenes. The highlight is a vibrant image perfectly capturing the atmosphere at the busy Diamond Harbour wharf on a hot summer day.

As a boy McAra enjoyed Saturday classes at Dunedin's Technical School of Art, and watercolour classes with H V Miller (1907-1986). He obtained degrees (English and languages) at Otago and Canterbury Universities, and trained as a high school teacher in Canterbury, and later Newcastle-Upon-Tyne (Drama in Education). He studied life painting with Doris Lusk (1916-1990), and with the Cranmer Group in Christchurch.

After a career in education, teaching at Linwood High School and the Canterbury College of Education Don McAra resigned in 1987, at the age of 50, to paint full time. His achievements include numerous exhibitions and a number of art prizes and awards. His work is to be found in many private collections in New Zealand and overseas.

An opening event where visitors can meet the artist will be held at Stoddart Cottage Gallery on Saturday 4 January at 2pm-4pm.

All Welcome.

For more on the artist see www.donmcara.net. or the attached artist bio.

BLACK SANDS RESORT

STORY CHATS DUNCAN

Tama James stood on the highest point of Ripapa Island, looking towards Lyttelton Harbour heads. The incoming tide placed white kisses on the rocks below Godley Head, as it had done for millenniums.

He wondered if the Iwi would accept the development and welcome in a new chapter in the island's history? He sighed, they were still uncertain, despite the prolonged discussions. There remained an element of suspicion. Spending treaty settlement money was always a long process. Who would benefit most from this project? He recalled the detailed financial plans he had personally drawn up, the jobs it would create, and the ongoing financial returns from the venture.

The following month Christchurch City Council gave its final approval, to the new golf course development on Ripapa Island. It was an ambitious scheme, not without some criticism in the letter's columns of the local press. The full-sized eighteen-hole course offered 32 acres of undulating fairway and 49 acres of rough. The completed course would have its first three short holes around Ripapa Island itself. The fourth, required a fifty-odd metre drive across harbour water to a small adjacent island, reached by a footbridge. Hole five returned the players to the main island.

Hole six spanned the eighty-odd metres of water to the mainland. Players followed via a new car bridge. The remaining holes were on the mainland, amid first-class landscaping with pleasant harbour views. All designed by the renowned American architect, Tom Doak, who was responsible for the magnificent course at Tara Iti. The installation was full of native trees and ferns, making it a pleasant course to play. One unusual thing was the sand bunkers featured black volcanic sand, hence the club's chosen name of the Black Sands Resort. The new golf clubhouse was located in the former gun emplacement, with an attractive aqua centre with swimming and hot pools. A heliport and ferry from Lyttelton served by a brand-new wharf installation.

The opening day followed Maori tradition with a Karakia blessing and songs of welcome. The large hangi cooked Canterbury lamb, pork belly, shellfish, vegetables and gathered herbs and spices. Several hundred people came to see the new facility, and enjoy the food and hospitality. It was an encouraging start and returned a sizeable profit, including the little onsite souvenir shop, selling small glass vials of black sand.

The first six months saw increasing numbers of golfers and a growing number of club memberships. Customer surveys confirmed the course was popular with locals and tourists alike. The only complaints centred on the ferry service, which found scheduling to the club's varied demands, challenging. The ferry service had won international approval and eco-friendly awards, but the strain of trying to satisfy these new customers took its toll. Staff problems began to increase with health issues and poor attendance. Things came a head when Tama James was shepherding a group of Chinese VIP businessmen from Lyttelton to Black Sands, when the ferry suffered an engine failure. Steele Marine Services towed the craft back to shore, and Tama bore the cost of flying the party across by helicopter to save face.

The Resorts governing board approved a motion to investigate the purchase of the harbour ferry business and expand its services into new tourist ventures. Tama approached the owners and agreed a fair price to acquire the company and amalgamate it into the Black Sands Resort. The decision proved to be a good one, consolidating its position as Lyttelton's most popular company. During the fourth year of operation it was decided to approach the Professional Golfers Association with a submission to be included in their list of premier golf courses. Tama oversaw the application, closely studying the requirements. Firstly, they needed a permanent golf professional, to replace a local player whom they had on a short-term contract.

The PGA's motto is 'Not for ourselves Alone,' and he hoped they would consider their application in that light. Searching for the right professional golfer wasn't an easy task. Ideally, they would like to employ, ex-US Open Champion, Michael Campbell, but that wasn't going to happen. So, Tama extended his search into Australia. Finally, after months of work, he liked the determination of a thirty-year-old Aboriginal player from Alice Springs. He had played consistently good professional golf, for seven years, twice winning state championships, with only local support. He was keen to relocate. His name was Jimmy Nowra, which meant black cockatoo, which the board thought was a good omen. Jimmy accepted the position and moved across, with his doctor wife and two children. The family fitted in immediately. Unfortunately, Black Sands application was unsuccessful as the PGA board thought the club did not have the required maturity, and should re-apply sometime in the future. Jimmy made a personal commitment to make his mark, and propel the club forward.

NZGB consults on Banks Peninsula, Lake Rotomā and Tararua place name proposals

20 November 2019

(English and te reo Māori)

The New Zealand Geographic Board Ngā Pou Taunaha o Aotearoa (NZGB) is inviting submissions on proposals for these place names on Banks Peninsula:

Current Name	Feature Type	Proposed Name
Adderley Head	Headland	Te Piaka / Adderley Head
Cass Peak	Hill	Ōrongomai / Cass Peak
Coopers Knob	Hill	Ōmawete / Coopers Knob
Dyers Pass	Pass	Pukeatua / Dyers Pass
Evans Pass	Pass	Tapuwaeharuru / Evans Pass
King Billy Island	Island	Aua / King Billy Island
Mansons Peninsula	Peninsula	Kaitangata / Mansons Peninsula
Rapaki	Locality	Te Rāpaki-o-Te-Rakiwhakaputa
Rapaki Rock [local use]	Rock	Te Ahi-a-Tamatea
Sugarloaf	Hill	Te Heru-o-Kahukura / Sugarloaf
The Tors	Rock	Te Moenga-o-Wheke / The Tors
Tihiokahukura / Castle Rock	Rock	Te Tihi-o-Kahukura / Castle Rock
Witch Hill	Hill	Te Upoko-o-Kurī / Witch Hill

The proposals were submitted by Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke (Rāpaki Rūnanga), who want to restore original Māori names that reflect Māori history in the area.

The NZGB says restoring traditional Ngāi Tahu names alongside well-known and established English names would recognise the significance of both names and provide a window into the heritage of both cultures. Two proposals are not for dual names as there were no English names for those features.

Submissions are also sought on a proposal to make Lancaster the official name of a mountain on Tararua Range in the lower North Island. The remaining proposals are for two features around Lake Rotomā near Rotorua:

Current Name	Feature Type	Proposed Name
Lancaster	Mountain	Lancaster
Otangiwai Point	Point	Otangiwao Point
Unnamed	Peninsula	Ngāmotu

Consultation on these 16 proposals is open between 20 November 2019 and 20 December 2019.

Submissions supporting or objecting to any of these proposals can be made online here, emailed to NZGBsubmissions@linz.govt.nz, or posted to the Secretary of the New Zealand Geographic Board, c/o Land Information New Zealand, PO Box 5501, Wellington 6145.

The NZGB will consider submissions at its first meeting in 2020.

Other Notifications

The NZGB is also notifying these place name changes effective from today:

- Taukahara, a place name on Banks Peninsula, is now officially applied to the nearby valley.
- Macrons are now correctly applied to Ōmāui Island and Ōreti River.

'Gladys and Alfie' by Jane McLauchlan

Gladys and Alfie have been married for forty years. Their nest is empty. Their go-getter son has heard the siren call of the big time and a career in Dunedin real estate. What is there left in life now for Gladys and Alfie, other than the cheese rolls at the Dainty Inn and their discreet worship of Joan and Paul, Invercargill's power couple?
