Give It A Go Day Club

A Chat with Claire Coveney

Claire Coveney is the social worker at Community House. She has developed a new programme for seniors and adults called the Give It A Go Day Club. The Club begins in Lyttelton on Wednesday June 16th between 10-2pm and will be held weekly at the Lyttelton Community Church rooms 40 Winchester Street, Lyttelton.

How did this initiative start?

Last year I had planned to develop something similar to models run by Presbyterian Support, Club 304 at Burwood, Delta Club and Lincoln Community Centre for the adults and seniors of Lyttelton Community. Having spoken to Nathan Mauger at the Recreation Centre last year about opportunities for older folk and then recently following a conversation with Jill Larking I looked at venues suitable for the Club. I decided on a smaller venue than the Recreation Centre. The community church over the road is just the right size and ambience to start with.

Why a Day Club?

As a social worker and activities co-ordinator in mental health and aged care we know from research about the impact of loneliness, isolation and lack of cognitive stimulation on people as they age. Social interaction, physical activity, connecting to others, good nutrition, mental and sensory stimulation as Dr Mason Durie attests to in Te Whare Tapa Wha are pillars to our wellbeing, mentally, emotionally, physically and spiritually,

Having facilitated social and activity-based groups with those experiencing isolation, grief or experiencing cognitive disabilities feedback was very positive from both participants and carers. The same goes for those who attended day clubs. People need time to get used to it, so I usually say give it a go for at least 3 times then decide.

Lyttelton has a community with other activities, so I see this pilot project as a complement to what is already offered but none the less essential for a local community.

What will you offer?

The programme will vary but will include morning tea and lunch. Mentally stimulating activities include quizzes and discussion, music and singing and games. On the other side there will be time for relaxation for those interested.

Physical stimulation will include movements to music. We hope to get some people in to show line dancing for instance for those interested. Any people out there with musical talents will be most welcome to join us.

The community will have input into the planning.

I imagine the 4 hours will go quickly.

Any response so far?

There has been a positive initial response from people, and I have tried to fit this in with other groups in Lyttelton. I am grateful to Lyttelton Community House as we apply for some funding support from Cressy Trust to cover some costs.

We have recently acquired a van to transport those who need a ride.

Working in partnerships

The team at the Lyttelton Health Centre are aware of this monthly pilot project and are welcome to refer. If volunteers want to offer their time as part of Timebank I am sure this could be arranged. This is just a beginning so it is possible it could expand with other groups in Lyttelton. We have 6 months to give it a go.

Want to Participate/Help

We would love you to come along to share and give support to this programme by joining in or volunteering. You can self-refer, or family or health professional can refer.

We are also looking for volunteers to help out with transport, meals, sharing their talents, especially music and connecting with people.

Referrals are open now.

Final Mass of Thanksgiving for St Joseph's the Worker Parish – Lyttelton

Pentecost Sunday – 23rd May 2021

On a coolish, but dry wintry afternoon 180 plus congregated on the site of our sacred Church site for the final scheduled Mass for the very last time after 156 years.

A marquee was erected a few days prior providing seating for 150 while the remainder of our congregation either sat outside or stood in and around the marquee. Thanks to Stark Bros Ltd (Andrew Stark and Clinton Williams) who have been special custodians of our 156-year-old Parish Bell for the last eight years, used one of their Hiab Crane Trucks to bring our bell back home for this final special Mass along with a couple of original church stones. Also special thanks to Les Schenkel of Teddington Forge who restored our gas lamp archway and gates on the Winchester Street entrance to all it's glory in time for our final Mass.

As our congregation arrived for the start of Mass at 3.30pm there was much sadness, confused and mixed emotions but also many happy faces to meet up once again with past and current Parishioners. Then, our Anglican great friends, across the road, rang their Bell to pay their final respects to our Lyttelton Catholic heritage attended by Rev John McLister, retired Rev Neil Struthers and his wife, Robyn and other Lyttelton supporters.

Mass commenced with the ringing of our 100-year-old plus St Joseph's School Bell to welcome our five priests who came to celebrate our final Mass to the Alter. Father Dan Doyle (retired) was our main celebrant who became our Parish priest post-earthquakes based at St Anne's of Woolston. Joining him was our last Parish priest at the time of the earthquakes Father Denis Nolan, now based in Ashburton, Father Benito, Father Peter and Father Paulo now supporting the new Parish of Christchurch East located at St Anne's as a result of the Catholic Diocese restructure of reducing Christchurch/Lyttelton from thirteen parishes to five.

As a devoted Catholic I have never attended any Mass celebrated by five priests. This is exceptionally rare (globally) and for all of us we felt very special and was the right decision to mark our 156-year-old Catholic heritage in Lyttelton.

At the conclusion of Mass, we listened to testimonials from Father Jim Consedine, Dave and Shirley Sanders, Moira and Martin Barr, Tyrone Fields and Aine & Aoife Doherty.

Father Jim joined our Parish in 1985 and to this day has been supporting our Parish for all these years. He spoke to our congregation on our history and special memories with some cheeky Irish humour thrown in for good measure but also with much sincerity and grace.

These speeches included how St Joseph's The Worker Parish was a community within a community and was not just the Parish Church on its own instead was united by the Sisters of Mercy and St Mary's School and St Joseph's Schools.

We remembered how we all had our own sitting positions with the McCarthy's at the back below the marine painting, the Warings second row right front, the Sanders were four up on the

We remembered our special priests from over the last sixty years who supported us in our faith including Father Brendan Gibbons, Father John Coleman, Father Clenaghan, Father Kevin Denis for his strength and leadership back then when it was so difficult for us all.

St Joseph's was a Catholic community within a community here in special Lyttelton united by many catholic families – the Loaders, the Tyros, the Wells, the McKenna's, the Waring's, the Morrison's, the May's, The Dineen's, the Small's, the Christmas's, the Payne's, the Fitzgerald's, the Ornsby's, the Botha's, the Fields, the Lennon's, the Twomey's, the Tredinnick's, the Boyd's, the Evan's, the Higginson's, the Moore's, the van Herpts, the van hoofs, the Lees, the Sanders's, the Doherty's and many others who share our special Catholic heritage.

We were united as a parish by our special Sisters of Mercy and both St Mary's and St Joseph Schools for many decades. When the convent was sold, we felt very sad but all of us were pleased our Sisters would continue to be a part of our Parish for many years to come.

This legacy continued with Sister Thecla and then Sister Judith who has been supporting our parish for more than 30 years and still does to this day.

Our current parishioners are also very special people who have kept their strong faith during emotionally challenging times when having to accept so many changes as directed by the Diocese.

Special thanks was offered by past parishioners who share this day together particularly too Gerry Doherty (43 years as a constant parishioner), Pene Clifford, Pauline

St Josephs Bell Arrival

Goodfellow, Mary Hancox, Liza Rossie, Francis Hutcheon, Huia Guthrey, Mary Botha and all other current parishioners. They have all kept our Parish strong and constant for so many years and we shared their pain as past Parishioners. There is no doubt our Catholic heritage and presence in Lyttelton has shaped many of us to who we are today for over 156 years.

The Convent has gone, the schools have gone and now our Parish is to be no more.

Father Jim Consedine reminded us, our church and our parish are not about buildings.

Our parish is about us, we the people, united by our catholic faith and local Catholic heritage of 156 years. These words provided us some comfort as we go forward into the future.

Thanks to St Anne's a St Joseph's Chapel will be created for us within their Woolston Church. Meantime plans are well underway for a St Joseph's the Worker Parish memorial which includes our 156 year old bell.

At the conclusion of Mass, we meet up for a cuppa and a snack at the Lyttelton Community Church (old Union Church) so thanks to Reverend Webster for allowing us to meet there and also thanks to the team at the Top Club who hosted some of the congregation for drinks and meals.

Sometime in the future our Lyttelton Catholic Community will meet again for a special reunion of the Parish and School. If you wish to join our Facebook Page please search St Joseph's Lyttelton (Parish and School) and send a friend request to join up.

Also, we kindly invite you all to assist in our fundraising efforts towards the costs of our Memorial. If you wish to donate you can either email gerrydoherty@xtra.co.nz for more details or you can simply lodge your donation to our bank account 031599 0125719-00 (refence your name) while also sending an email to Gerry Doherty confirming you have made a donation – thanking you in advance.

Finally, we wish all members of our Lyttelton community a happy, holy and rewarding life.

*God Bless You All.

Lumen

A Company Living Its Values

There are quite a few interesting businesses that help support the Lyttelton Information Centre by way of yearly membership. Lumen is one of these businesses.

Lumen is a group of specialist engineers who think big but keep close ties with the community around them. Dan Tombleson, the company's managing director and a Lyttelton local, has been at the helm of his company since 2016, though the company has been around in one guise or another since 1994.

Originally the company started out in electrical power right around the time that the New Zealand electricity industry was privatised. These days, however, Lumen is taking a more holistic approach. A friendly and downright passionate bunch of engineering consultants who now span across a range of services; from engineering to reduce energy & carbon consumption, earthquake strengthening and structural engineering, right through to working with developers and local residents to engineer sustainable new homes. Their focus is simple: designing engineering solutions for a better future for us all.

Lumen has grown organically and to this day, it is 100% employee owned. As Dan puts it: 'Our culture and values are really important to us'. Down-to-earth and no-nonsense is how he would describe his people and company, and he's keen to point out that this approachable attitude stretches to his clients too: 'We like to problem solve with our customers along the way, and work with them as an extended part of the team'.

A big part of Lumen's Christchurch based team focuses on Civil & Structural engineering and was very active in rebuilding the city after the 2011 earthquake. They work on everything from engineering large commercial buildings, local schools, residential homes and also earthquake strengthening and restoring some of Christchurch's most iconic historical buildings. With a full project team under one roof, Lumen is able to offer its clients small and large a full circle service to suit their budget.

One of the newest business units under the Lumen roof is the Energy & Carbon team. It is a reflection of the values the Lumen team holds most dear: the environment and sustainability, two things at the forefront of their minds when designing engineering solutions.

With sustainability techniques and solutions going through such rapid change at the moment, the Lumen team listens carefully to clients' needs and develops pragmatic and innovative solutions for businesses big and small. Dan says, 'We are working with local businesses & government-owned enterprises to help them become more sustainable by optimising the way they operate and use energy and carbon'. Dan is keen to stress their practical approach to sustainability: they don't over-engineer and believe that sometimes it's the practical, straightforward solutions that lead to big savings for their clients in the long run.

From installing solar panels to zooming around on the office electric scooter, the Lumen team also practice what they preach and the company has gone fully sustainable since 2019. They are now a carbon positive company - meaning they take more carbon out of the atmosphere than they put into it - partly due to purchasing offsets through the Hinewai Trust. Only an hour and a half away from Lyttelton, this ecological restoration project focuses on natural regeneration of native vegetation and wildlife and fits in beautifully with Lumen's ethos and values.

As a Lyttelton local, you'll probably also bump into Dan down at Lyttelton Primary School where he is a Trustee. Don't hesitate to say hi to him or give the team a bell to talk through structural engineering needs or if you're looking to reduce your carbon footprint this year.

Port Saddle

Ecological Restoration, Recreation & Education

The Lyttelton Reserves Management Committee have a new community initiative. Speakers Sessions are planned throughout 2021 to upskill the committee and the wider public about what is happening in the hills around Lyttelton. To kick the series off, Kim Kelleher, Head of Environment & Sustainability at the Lyttelton Port Company, Kate Whyte Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust, Trustee and Covenant Liaison and Brent Barrett Senior Biosecurity Consultant at Boffa Miskell Limited came to inform community members all about the work going on above Lyttelton in Lyttelton Port Company land known as the Port Saddle.

Kim Kelleher feels very lucky to have the Port Saddle included in her work portfolio. Working at the Port Company for the past ten years she said she's really enjoyed this project and it's been lots of fun. "The site high above Lyttelton township was bought by the Port Company for strategic purposes initially", she said. "In 2010 the Port Company was hearing the community wanted access to the land so working with the wider community and the Council a track network was designed and built." In 2013 Kim said, "It made sense to turn the site into a biodiversity project". To make that happen the Port entered into dialogue and then a partnership with the Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust. A Master Plan was created for the site. This plan guides future development.

The Port Saddle is helping the Lyttelton Port Company achieve many positive outcomes. Kim explained that employees are getting to know the wider community on site. "I also particularly enjoy the opportunity to work with local primary school children as part of the Enviro Schools programme. The kids are able to try all sorts of interesting stuff when they are outdoors with us". The Saddle also provides lots of staff team building opportunities and gives the Port Company an opportunity to have a positive effect on a local regeneration programme within the harbour with the added bonus of possibly creating its own carbon offset.

Kate Whyte from the Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust has helped the Port Company achieve its biodiversity goals. Her useful insights as an ecologist have helped shape the native planting plan and further enhance the wildlife corridor that already existed. She has been able to take a good look at what is actually on the ground, imagine what was there prior and assess possible threats to regeneration and plan the way forward. "I looked at how to manage the sun, wind, soil on the site. The eastern side is less stable and much damper, so we are leaving that for nature to look after", she said. To date all the ecological restoration work has been on the west side. Moving forward she said that many of the pines on the eastern side of the site are going to be removed and re-planted with natives. Some locals will be pleased to know that the gum trees on the western side are also being considered for reduction over time. "Currently the trees are very useful to shade the early plantings on the Port Saddle", she said.

Kate highlighted that our community was incredibly lucky to still have many wildlife species close by to the township. "There are still skinks, and a wide variety of native birds. Copper butterflies, jewelled gecko's, wetta and native spiders", she said.

While Kate is actively working to bring back more biodiversity to the site Brett Barrett has also been commissioned to make sure that all that hard regeneration work is not ruined by pests. He has done an extensive study on Port Company, City Council and Department of Conservation land nearby to assess the impact of browsing animals. "I have found significant possum trails, rats, mice, quails, plus wild and domestic cats using the landscape. In fact the numbers of possums are some of the largest numbers that I have seen with 1000's of possums residing and feeding in the cliff areas above Lyttelton", he said.

If you walk up the Port Saddle and further into the DoC land you may have already seen the notices about trapping in the area.

Brett has been doing this work for the past half year. His team has been catching significant numbers of possums. As part of this work, he has also been very surprised at how many cats are feeding off the trap sites. He started a conversation starter about cats. He'd seriously like residents to think about keeping cats inside at night time as many domestic and feral are eating off the traps and using the area as a hunting ground!

Brett had some very interesting observations on possums. He has found that you can literally train possums to move into other less sensitive areas of bush by changing the pathways they use in the bush. For new plantings and old growth areas this offers great possibilities.

The first evening in the series was very informative and feedback positive.

The next talk in the Lyttelton Reserves Management Committee Speaker Series is by Dr Sam Hampton Director of Te Pātaka o Rākaihautū / Banks Peninsula Geopark.

Parking for Lyttelton Farmers Market – Tell your Friends

Lyttelton Port Company has graciously offered the LFM the use of Jetty No. 2 carpark (over the overbridge) each Saturday for additional market parking. Entry is only a gold coin donation which goes to the Lyttelton Seafarers Centre.

If that site is full If you are able to walk for about 10 minutes, there is usually quite a lot of parking to be found on Godley Quay, Brittan & Cressy Terraces and Voelas Road and you can come into the market via the sweet Te Ana Marina walkway which passes by the Woolshed building.

The Marriage Of Figaro, But To Which Susanna?

Very few opera goers know that Mozart made significant alterations to his original 1786 version of The Marriage of Figaro, changing out both of Susanna's arias, completely!

Even less known are Mozart's improvements to one of his best-known soprano arias, 'Dove sono', the aria for the Countess, made famous for NZers by Kiri. These changes, and significant changes to the Count's showpiece aria, were made by Mozart, three years after the first performances in Vienna. The changes were made for a second series of performances of The Marriage of Figaro in Vienna, in 1789.

The revisions are not only musical, but dramaturgical. The opera's librettist, Lorenzo da Ponte, wrote completely new texts (creating a different temperament) for Susanna's two character-defining arias. The re-workings of the Countess's aria reveal a more clear-minded, more determined, more modern Contessa.

The revised version is never performed, and there is no available performing material for it, as far as I know. The immediate popularity of Mozart's 1786 Marriage of Figaro meant that it was quickly published. Three years later, no publisher of the day wished to republish the opera, with the 1789 changes. It made no commercial sense. Hence, Mozart's reasoned changes to his own music still remain unknown to singers, stage directors and public.

The Narropera Trio will present its musical/narrated version of The Marriage of Figaro in two performances on 27th June and 3rd July, in The Golden Room at 'Lansdown(e)'. These narropera performances are paired with staged performances of the same opera to follow in Christchurch shortly after, presented by New Zealand Opera.

A narropera performance is the perfect 'prep' for a staged performance of a tortuously tangled plot like Figaro's. Moreover, the two 'Lansdown(e)' performances will offer the public the opportunity to hear Susanna's two little known 1789 arias as well as Mozart's masterly improvements to 'Dove sono'.

Climate action at centre of Christchurch Conversations

A series of free public events aimed at sparking discussions about how Christchurch can reach its 2030 climate change targets gets under way at Tūranga at the end of this month.

The Christchurch Conversations – Towards 2030 events are being organised by Te Pūtahi Centre for Architecture and City Making and are aimed at helping people understand how their actions can make a difference.

Each event will cover a different topic and feature a diverse range of thought-provoking speakers and activities – from local experts providing the latest information, to local businesses and residents sharing their experiences and actions.

The first event on Sunday 30 May will focus on how changing the way we move around the city can increase wellbeing, reduce costs and cut emissions.

People will be able to check out electric cars, scooters, bikes and buses and talk with people who are reducing their footprint by avoiding travel and making smart travel choices.

Moving around a 21st century city will run from 1pm to 4pm, with the free presentations taking place between 2pm and 3.30pm in the TSB Space on Level 1 of Tūranga.

The other four events in the Christchurch Conversations – Towards 2030 series will focus on:

Better homes and buildings, Tuesday 29 June
Feeding the city, Sunday 8 August

Our future energy, Wednesday 29 September
Ten-minute neighbourhoods, Sunday 31 October

Te Pūtahi has received support from Christchurch City Council's Sustainability Fund and the Better Homes Towns and Cities National Science Challenge to deliver this series of community events. The transport event is also supported by Metro, Lime and Waka Kotahi.

"We need everyone in our city to make behaviour changes if we are to achieve our goal of halving greenhouse gas emissions by 2030 and reaching net zero emissions by 2045," says Councillor Sara Templeton, who chairs the Sustainability and Community Resilience Committee.

"However, when it comes to climate action people often don't know where to start. The Christchurch Conversations events are designed to help people take the first steps and to show them how small changes are achievable, and can make a big difference," Cr Templeton says.

To book seats for the presentations and for more information about each event, visit Te Pūtahi Centre for Architecture and City Making.

THE NEW ZEALAND SOCIETY OF AUTHORS
TE PUNI KAITUHI O AOTEAROA (PEN NZ INC)

The NZSA New Zealand Heritage Literary Awards Opens June 1st 2021

NZSA Canterbury announces the 2021 NZSA New Zealand Heritage Book Awards will open for entries on the 1st June 2021. In its eighth year, this event is now firmly established on the New Zealand Literary calendar. Past winners have included Fiona Farrell, Witi Ihimaera, Whiti Hereaka and Brian Turner – last year’s major winners were Caroline Barron for Ripiro Beach: A Memoir of Life After Near Death, and Fiona Kidman for All the Way to Summer.

Books published between 1 June 2020 and 1 August 2021 and linked to New Zealand’s heritage, can be submitted for fiction book, non-fiction book, children’s book, and a book written in Te Reo Māori. Books that have only been published digitally will not be accepted. There are two online entry categories for short prose and poetry.

This year we have a stellar line up of judges for the various categories. They are:

Non-fiction Books - Sally Blundell and Katie Pickles

Fiction Books - Paula Morris

Children’s Books - Gavin Bishop

Te Reo Māori Books - Charisma Rangipunga

Short Fiction – Jane Higgins

Poetry - David Eggleton

Winners of the Fiction and Non-fiction book awards each receive $1000; the Te Reo Māori book award and Children’s book award winners will receive $300 each; and the winners of the short prose award and poetry award will be awarded $200 each.

The deadline is a month earlier this year because the short list will be announced at the Christchurch Word Festival, which takes place at the end of August, with the winners being announced as part of the Christchurch Heritage Festival on 22nd October.

The competition opens on 1 June and closes on 1 August 2021. All entries should have some relationship with the theme of the Christchurch Heritage Festival 2021: People and Place - our stories revealed. Full submission details along with the entry form, fees and terms and conditions can be found at: www.nzsacanterbury.wordpress.com

Matariki Fireworks

A date has been set for Christchurch's first ever Matariki Fireworks Spectacular.

The public fireworks display will take place at New Brighton on Saturday 10 July, starting at 7pm.

"We're hoping the early start time will make it easier for families with young tamariki to come along and enjoy the fireworks and other entertainment that we've got planned to celebrate Matariki," says Christchurch City Council Events and Arts Manager Tanya Cokojic.

"This is the first year that Ōtautahi Christchurch has marked Matariki with public fireworks display and we're hoping for a really big turnout for this uniquely Kiwi celebration."

The night's festivities will start at 6pm with live entertainment and food trucks in New Brighton Mall. Then, at 7pm, attention will be switched to the sky above New Brighton Pier where a spectacular fireworks and light show, set to a soundtrack of Kiwi music, will unfold.

The event will conclude at 7.30pm.

"It is a going to be a really family-friendly fun celebration of Matariki so make sure you keep the evening of Saturday 10 July free," Ms Cokojic says.

KidsFest Bookings Open

Christchurch's much-loved KidsFest will celebrate 30 years of entertaining, teaching and connecting children in July.

The activity-packed winter school holidays festival – popular with both parents and children alike – will power up from 10 July, with bookings open from Monday 31 May. The KidsFest events website will be live from Thursday 27 May so that you can plan your own programme.

With hundreds of exciting and interactive activities to choose from and heaps of entertaining events, the demand for spots during the two-week festival will be very high.

Christchurch City Council Events and Arts Manager Tanya Cokojic says KidFest is a "wonderful opportunity to bring young people together to enjoy a huge range of experiences and activities".

"With KidsFest, they can use their imagination, benefit from creative learning and explore interactive activities," she says. "It's also a chance to try something new and perhaps discover a fresh interest.

"KidsFest aims to entertain and educate while creating special memories for families.

"You can learn how to build and launch your own rocket with the Christchurch Rocketeers, experience the freezing temperatures faced by huskies and ride a husky rig, brew a potion or head to a performing arts camp.

"This year's programme, which runs from Saturday 10 July to Sunday 25 July, really opens the door to creativity and amazing activities and opportunities."

Keep an eye out for updates on the KidsFest Facebook page or at kidsfest.co.nz.
