Is a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative designed to keep our community informed with what is going on around the harbour. It's also an opportunity to showcase the people and places that other wise would go under the radar. Our community connections ensure we know what's going on in the wider community and can share the news with you all. A big thank you goes out to all the contributors and our funders Rata Foundation and Christchurch City Council Strengthening Communities who enable the hard copies to be printed each edition. A Note from Rushani.

Kia ora to all our readers. What a weather rollercoaster we have been on! Snow, sleet, sun, rain, wind, I don't mind too much as long as it remains somewhat true to the season. As I wander around our streets, I am seeing early blossoms gracing bare wintery branches and there are even a few daffodils popping up in my garden. It's such a lovely and welcome reminder that longer and warmer days are coming. For those of us who get very little sun during the winter, or perhaps no sun for some weeks, I hope you are starting to see it shining in your garden for a slither of time, increasing incrementally day by day. Limited sun hours is the small price we pay to live in our special port town. Something those on the other side of the hill don't quite understand. "But doesn't Lyttelton get no sun in the winter?" or "What? No Sun?". But they don't know how special it is to be lulled to sleep by the sounds of a working port or what it means to visit friends who have a slightly different view of the harbour and hills. Lucky we all are! Keep well.

Sustainability grants support climate action

A Carbon Coach to help people reduce their greenhouse gas emissions and an app that helps organisations to share their resources are among those to benefit from the latest round of Sustainability Fund grants.

The Sustainability Fund was set up by the Christchurch City Council last year to assist community action on climate change. This week the Sustainability and Community Resilience Committee approved $121,689 for eight proposals aimed at reducing emissions and building resilience to local climate impacts.

All of the successful applicants support the Council's climate change objectives and targets of halving greenhouse gas emissions by 2030 and reaching net zero by 2045.

"We know that there is strong demand for support on climate related action in the community and that everyone and every organisation will have to make changes to reduce emissions".

"That's why a project like Mutu Resource Xchange stands out. We've approved $20,000 in funding to support this local technology business because their app has huge potential to reduce waste, manage consumption and save money," says Councillor Sara Templeton, who chairs the Sustainability and Community Resilience Committee.

"The app would enable businesses, councils and other asset-based organisations to better manage and share their resources and is planned to be piloted with Sport Canterbury, Canterbury University and Christchurch Holdings Limited. It's an idea that has not just local but national and global market potential.

"We've also supported Project Lyttelton with a $20,000 grant to establish a Community Carbon Coach who will help households and businesses in Lyttelton reduce their environmental footprint. This is exactly the type of grassroots climate action needed throughout Christchurch. We are hoping that others can learn from this innovative community action."

"Another project to gain support is the Superhome Movement, who received $6,000 to prepare and publish their Healthy Home Guide. People will be able to look through some of the most sustainable homes in Christchurch over the weekend of 14-15 August and this funding will support those tours and enable visitors to pick up a Healthy Home Design Guide," Cr Templeton says.

Grants were also given to:

- Phillipstown Community Centre Charitable Trust ($5689) to install solar energy on a moveable small building at the Phillipstown Community Hub.
- Te Whare Roimata Trust ($20,000) so it can employ a co-ordinator to set up a food box delivery service for the local community.
- Blue Cradle Foundation ($20,000) to support community education about the local coastal environment and to mount a bid for Christchurch to host the 6th International Marine Protected Area Congress.
- Bush Farm Trust ($10,000) for its youth education programme at Orton Bradley Park.
- Project Management Institute ($20,000) to create and pilot in Christchurch a sustainability toolbox for project managers.
- Te Pātaka o Rākaihautū / Banks Peninsula Geopark Trust ($10,000) to provide historical and geological information about Banks Peninsula as part of establishing a local Geopark.

Applications to the Sustainability Fund can now be made for the next funding round, which closes on 27 September. For more information and to apply visit: ccc.govt.nz/sustainability-fund

How to Reclaim a Public Space The Zig Zag is Adopted

Most days Duncan, Molly and I walk up or down the Joyce Street walkway that we affectionately call the zigzag. There are lots of community spaces like this in Lyttelton, a town that is often easier to walk around on foot because of all its interconnecting paths and steps. They are like mini parks, oases of green amongst the tarmac, concrete and scoria. But green spaces have to be maintained and that often falls to council who have limited budgets to spread over a large area.

The Joyce Street zigzag has been planted deliberately and inadvertently with a mix of natives and exotics. Some of them are growing well, like the harakeke, muehlenbeckia and coprosma. Some grow too well, like the sycamore at the top of the zigzag. But between them is a dead zone of bare ground and nature keeps trying to colonise that space with weeds. The council comes through regularly to spray to kill the weeds because removing them by hand is too expensive. The cost of that is bare ground and weedkiller, which runs off it down the slope into the storm drain below and the harbour beyond.

I talked to a contractor there, Chris. Chris often hand weeds when he is working solo, but other times he has to spray. He put me in contact with the chap at the council who coordinates all this, Neville Tucker. Neville came out with his serious council mate, Richard, to look at the site and see whether they could let us adopt it as a community and stop it from being sprayed. As for anything else you want to do around here with consent of council, health and safety bureaucracy had to be adhered to. I knew a chap who might be able to help with that, as I'm terrible at it. Hamish Fairburn of Conservation Volunteers stepped up to the plate with his high viz jackets, paperwork and respect for authority.

We were away.

Council provided the plants, Hamish's team provided the health and safety shenanigans and tools and I roped in some volunteers who joined us for a day of planting at the zigzag.

The weather was diabolical.

Despite the forecast saying that the rain would stop, it didn't. It rained incessantly. And it was cold too. We had 200 rengarenga and Hamish was reluctant to place them all before the planting as he wasn't sure would have enough people to get them in the ground by the end of the morning. But about 20 of us came along (I'm not sure exactly how many as Hamish's sign-in sheet disintegrated into papier mâché), braved the weather and got it done. The plants were in and mulched by the end of an hour (thank you to everyone who came to lend a hand and to those who would have come along later if we hadn't finished so quickly!).

It's a good start and we're delighted with how it looks and how it will look when the plants grow and fill in the spaces. It's going to take more community involvement if we are to keep it looking good, expand on up the hill and prevent the council needing to spray further. If you're reading this and would like to help, I'm sure there will be working days at the zigzag in future, or you can get on the Conservation Volunteers mailing list and be informed when there is a planting day in your area.

Or perhaps you can adopt your own little bit of public green space in Lyttelton and free the council up to do more of that paperwork they love.

2021 Christchurch City Council Community Service Awards

Every three years the Community Board calls for nominations for Community Service Awards. Locals are encouraged to recommend community members who make an outstanding contribution in their locale.

A special celebration is organised by the Community Board to mark the occasion. This year the Award Ceremony was at Ōtoromiro Hotel in Governors Bay.

Congratulations to all the recipients for the great work they have done.

Below are the detailed citations for the award recipients from the Lyttelton area.

The detailed citations are followed by the names of other community award recipients from other parts of the Peninsula.

Darryl Cribb

Daryl has been running the Lyttelton Arts Factory – formally known as The Loons – for the past 15 years. Despite having a full-time job, Daryl gives up a lot of his spare time making sure that the shows and drama classes are running smoothly for the community of Lyttelton.

He makes sure the school hall is set up for the children of Lyttelton School every second Friday, and it is not unusual to see his van still parked outside the hall at 10pm while he sets up sound and lighting. He is always smiling, and nothing is a problem for him.

Daryl volunteering his time and skill provides the community of Lyttelton with a great venue to run school productions and world class shows for the locals.

Darryl was nominated by Gregory Yee and Selena Mantey-Worrall.

Jenny Healey

Jenny has been volunteering her time to Cass Bay causes for 30+ years with her involvement in the Cass Bay Residents Association and the Cass Bay Reserves Management Committee.

In addition, Jenny is involved with Waka Ora Healthy Harbour, the Head-to-Head Working Party and Pest Free Peninsula.

She has campaigned for and undertaken various projects for the welfare of Cass Bay and its residents, some of which include:

- Pony Point Place of Reflection for the Muslim Community
- Covid welfare checks and activities for Cass Bay residents
- Steadfast Landscape Plan
- Volunteer coordination for work on the Foreshore track from Corsair Bay to Pony Point
- Annual Cass Bay Beach Party activity planning
- New public toilet block for Cass Bay
- Signage to help protect the White Flipped Penguins
- Ensuring future budget for maintenance of the Cass Bay Playground

Amongst all of this, Jenny also finds time to work on a myriad of issues affecting the community, such as:

- Boy racers
- Parking by the beach
- School bus to Cashmere High School
- Encouraging membership of the Community Patrol

The whole of the Cass Bay community and visitors to the area have benefitted from Jenny's work.

Jenny was nominated by Tracey Adams and Scott Adams

Ann Jolliffe

Ann has been involved with the Lyttelton Historical Museum Society for many years, first as the Community Board representative, and then as an elected committee member.

During her involvement, Ann has provided a means of staying in touch with stakeholders. She has assisted with many events and supported the Society's AGM's. With Ann's help, the Committee has delivered a number of pop-up exhibitions, digitalized the photo collection, and enlivened the new museum site at 35 London Street. It is thanks to Ann that there is a wonderful seat installed at the new site, which has been enjoyed by many people.

The current major project to benefit from her expertise is the raising of funds for a new museum building to tell our stories.

Ann is always positive, and she approaches every task with good humour and a can-do attitude.

Ann was nominated by Helen Cobb and Murray McGuigan on behalf of Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Historical Museum Committee.

Kerry McCarthy

This award is accepted on behalf of Kerry by Roy Montgomery.

Kerry McCarthy was involved with the Lyttelton Historical Museum Society in a voluntary capacity for over a decade, and in many roles including custodian, caretaker, curator, and then latterly as President of the Society.

Kerry led the Te Ūaka Lyttelton Museum team through her exemplary Presidency of the Lyttelton Historical Museum Society. As well as chairing monthly museum meetings and fronting for the organisation at formal occasions, Kerry directed a voluntary team whose building was lost in the Canterbury earthquakes, through the development of a new museum building to Resource Consent stage(current). As curator, she worked tirelessly to save the collection, store it safely, and to organize exhibitions and online resources for the community.

Kerry was instrumental in developing themes for the new Museum, and she was a major contributor to its strategy and planning. She also created exhibitions for the Society, most lately the "Women of Lyttelton Gaol", an audio-visual exhibition based on detailed research, which is still available online for future researchers to use.

Kerry was an inspiration to others, and through a long illness she never lost her sense of humour and her deep commitment to creating a new museum for the Lyttelton community. It is through her selfless work that we are in the position we are in today of being well down the path to achieving that goal.

Kerry was nominated by Lizzie Meek and Helen Cobb for Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Historical Museum Committee.

Flora McGregor

Flo has been an active member of the Lyttelton Community for many years with involvement in:

- Coaching and committee positions for Lyttelton and Whakaraupō Netball Clubs
- Lyttelton Information Centre Board
- Tree of Hope Christmas Giving Project
- Fundraising for various groups at the Garage Sale, including Lyttelton Youth and sporting teams
- Community House
- Delivery of Meals
- Operation of the former Seafarers Centre
- Classroom assistance at Lyttelton Main School
- Key organiser for Past Pupil events for Lyttelton Main School

Flo is also a member of:

- Lyttelton Reserves Management Committee
- Lyttelton Recreation Ground Reserve Management Committee
- Lyttelton Recreation Centre Trust

Many people have benefited from Flo's fundraising efforts, time, love, caring, guidance, driving, coaching, leadership, administration skills and more.

Flo holds true to being a guardian. She values what has gone on in the past and she holds a space for the future. She is truly dedicated to her community and family.

Flo was nominated by Wendy Everingham and Jane Walders.

Sue-Ellen Sandlilands

For the past 16 years, Sue-Ellen has been the quiet public face of Project Lyttelton, and the quiet but powerful force of support from behind.

She has had her hand on almost every project, with major roles in the Festival of Lights, The Farmer's Market, and the Community Garden. She has gone above and beyond, volunteering many hours of her time every week with a heart of pure gold, and a spirit to match. If you have been to the Farmer's Market, it would be almost impossible not to see Sue-Ellen there as a volunteer in the information stall or selling seedlings from the Community Garden. She also volunteers at the Garage Sale.

Sue-Ellen was a key creator of the Lyttelton Heart Project, which was started as a safe and healing space for people after the February 2011 earthquakes. It started with stitching hearts from old blankets, and fabric pieces to give away to any passers-by on the street, along with an invitation to join them in whatever way they could. She understood that while people needed to come together, what they really needed was a vehicle for being there. This effort was healing for so many in the community, and it is still talked about to this day. It was included in the Hope and Wire documentary about the earthquakes and some of the hearts are in Te Papa Tongarewa in Wellington.

Sue-Ellen was nominated by Sarah van der Burch and Project Lyttelton.

Stop/go workers managing sites on Dyers Pass Road next week

Stop/go workers will manage traffic through worksites on Dyers Pass Road, and at the intersection with Summit Road, next week as contractors begin the last push to complete safety work on the high-risk road.

On Monday August 16 work starts near the intersection of Dyers Pass Road and Summit Road, by the Sign of the Kiwi. Several work sites on Dyers Pass Road will also be combined, with one long section of Dyers Pass Road down to one lane instead of multiple small sites. This work is weather dependent.

We're asking drivers and cyclists to take extra care and attention and keep an eye out for stop/go workers, who will be managing traffic between the hours of 6am and 7pm Monday to Friday (August 16-20). During the weekend traffic lights will be back in place and delays of up to 20 minutes are possible.

Overnight road closures will continue outside of these hours. The night closures allow the team to do more rock-breaking work, pour kerb and lay asphalt on the city side of Dyers Pass Road.

This project has been underway since December, with work sites controlled by traffic lights.

We're adding about three kilometres of guardrails along Dyers Pass Road to improve safety for people using the road. The road has a high crash rate and the steep terrain means that when crashes causing vehicles to leave the road do happen, they often result in severe injuries. We're also widening the sealed road in places and adding new channel to manage drainage.

Wet weather and soft soil conditions

Unexpectedly soft soil conditions, rain and recent weather events that closed the road, has resulted in some construction delays.

Weather permitting, the project team expect to complete major work near Summit Road in the first week of September using traffic lights. This is a week longer than originally anticipated. The remaining work will finish in September using stop/go crew to minimise delays to road users. Almost all widening and drainage channel work is complete, with more than half of the safety barrier already installed.

We know this work has been incredibly disruptive and would like to thank all residents, motorists and cyclists for their patience as this important safety project nears completion.

Message from Steve, the Top Club President damage meant we really underutilised the bottom atrium area – and I wonder if anyone has fond memories of the carpet up the walls in the old restaurant. The club needed a long-awaited refresh, and I was lucky

I have been an active member of the Top Club committee for some 13 years now. First on the committee under President Don McPherson, then serving under Neville Adams, Lindsay Gough and then finally Gary Horan, I was lucky enough to have the opportunity to become the Top Club president myself in August 2016. Seems like a lifetime ago when I think of the changes that I've been part of since then.

Having help navigate how the Top Club was hoping to thrive following the earthquakes, and how we were managing to still offer something in the Lyttelton community - through to helping secure the final insurance payout and participating in multiple design meetings with a view of transforming the club.

When I think back now to 5 years ago, the sports hall was only used sparingly, with a dark floor and no windows – Not helped by the temporary earthquake repairs to the left-hand wall – temporarily in place for the previous 5 years. The bar could and would become a real bottle neck for punters and bar staff – enough to work alongside some wonderful people to help make the concept become a reality.

The vision throughout this time was to help create a club that could be enjoyed by everyone – old and new to the club. To create a variety for our members and the wider community to enjoy this fantastic facility and its amazing views – to dine, watch live sports, play pool with a view, play in our brand-new gaming room or just use the club as a place to catch up with friends – all while surrounded by a simply brilliant team of bar staff. Since the work started in earnest in 2017, we have seen the club membership grow from under 300 to well in excess of 900 financial members – and this is something I will be proud of long into the future.

After 13 years – with the council very nearly finishing the retaining wall, us entering the exciting next chapter in our restaurant and having helped build on keeping the Top Club central to the community, I feel now is the time to pass the baton to someone else. Earlier this year, I informed the Top Club committee that I won't be standing for re-election at this year's AGM – instead wanting to put my support behind whomever is lucky enough to lead the committee into the future.

Thank you to everyone on the committee past and present who has supported me and the club to get to where we are today. I have great confidence that this foundation we have built can really become what we all imagined it could be – and I can't wait for my family and I to enjoy the facilities as loyal members for many years to come.

Thanks for having me, Steve Targus

Earth, the story of a living planet

When we first saw the image of planet Earth in space it had a dramatic effect on how we thought about our cosmic home. The astronauts who first saw it spoke about the beauty of the blue-green planet but also of its fragility and vulnerability. A new name for the Earth was spaceship Earth. 50 years on the cosmologists scan the night skies with their sophisticated telescopes searching for planets around other suns in other galaxies, always asking the question, "Could they support life?" Humans are now space explorers. But how likely was it that life could or would arise on Earth when it first formed?

4.5 billion years ago the solar system developed from a spinning disc of cosmic dust left over from the super nova that gave birth to our sun. From burning gases to molten rock, the Earth slowly cooled forming a hard crust which allowed the oceans to form. Enveloped in a blanket of methane, ammonia, and carbon dioxide, it was hostile to life as we know it. And yet within 1 billion years anaerobic bacteria had appeared in the shallow oceans, first as dense mats and then forming many distinctive shapes. A characteristic of living organisms is their need of energy. These bacteria got their energy from the chemical reactions in the rocks on the ocean floor and the vents releasing hot water. Myriad species of bacteria had the Earth to themselves for perhaps a billion years. Then a significant new form of bacteria appeared, cyanobacteria, or blue-green algae. Their green colour came from the emergence of the wonder molecule we call chlorophyll, which is able to capture light energy from the sun and convert it to the chemical energy that holds the molecules of carbon dioxide and hydrogen together in a molecule of glucose. Cyanobacteria use the sun's energy to split the hydrogen from a molecule of water. That process, called photosynthesis, continues today and every day in every plant and is the source of all our food.

The byproduct of photosynthesis is the gas, oxygen, the other half of the split water molecule. As the populations of cyanobacteria multiplied the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere increased. Single and then multicellular oxygen-breathing animals evolved which got their energy from eating the plants or decomposing them. 500 million years ago the biodiversity of the planet flourished; millions of species evolved, increasing in complexity, until the Earth was a multitude of ecosystems each with their own unique interacting communities of plants and animals; soaring forests and tropical jungles, giant kelp forests, and coral reefs, swarming with swimming, creeping, flying, running, burrowing creatures, all living together in self organizing ecosystems. From deep oceans to high mountains, frozen glaciers to scorching deserts, living ecosystems emerged. The Earth had come alive.

No longer can we divide the ecosystems into living and non-living components, how can we separate the water and the fish, the mountain and the lichens, the sky and the soaring raptors, the soil and the micro-organisms? Within the ecosystems and between them, there is constant interaction with the atmosphere, the climate, the winds and ocean currents, the whole protected from cosmic radiation by a giant magnetic shield. The planet Earth's sphere of activities extends from its atmosphere to its subterranean depths. The elements like carbon and nitrogen, sometimes alone, sometimes part of complex molecules, constantly cycle between air, plants, animals, oceans, rivers, lakes, bacteria, fungi, soils and rocks even from tectonic plates to volcanoes. Earth's rhythms extend from circadian to lunar, from seasonal to annual, from millennial to aeons. This living Earth has become a self-regulating stable entity, not unlike a living organism itself.

Sunday 29th August

Crafternoon: Needle Felting: Animals with Armature with Elizabeth Sheid

<https://cwea.arlo.co/w/courses/806-crafternoons-needle-felting-animals-with-armature>

Creating a unique felt animal using a wire skeleton gives them a sense of movement. Using armature for needle felted animals adds a whole load of fun to them as it can make them pose-able, it can add strength for otherwise too thin animal leg made of just wool, and can be an easier way of making delicate parts, such as fingers. In this course, learn how to create a realistic and flexible animal step-by-step using the needle felting technique, from the initial creative process to best tips on keeping your works in great condition. Learn all the necessary materials, essential tools, and different ways to personalize your piece. Suitable for children 10 years and up but minors must be accompanied and supported by an adult as the process involves using a very sharp needle. Students must have attended a Beginning Needle Felting course or be confident with the needle felting process. All materials for the workshop will be supplied and are included in the price.

focus on what being a grandparent means to you. Research into childhood and neurological development has deepened our understanding of what babies need and has changed some recommended practice. But what has changed and what's the same? From baby wearing to breast feeding, from dressing and bathing, to baby led weaning - learn some tips and tricks to help you be a hands-on grandparent and a great support person. Connect with other grandparents, share your experiences and build your confidence in a supportive environment.

Miraculous Mending with the Sewing Fairy, Ruth Targus

<https://cwea.arlo.co/w/courses/724-miraculous-mending-with-the-sewing-fairy>

This two-part workshop will show you techniques to fix fabric and woollen holes, rips and wear from a tiny dot to a gaping hole. Using both hand stitching and sewing machine techniques and save your favourite items! This workshop is suitable for anyone who just wants to know how to fix stuff regardless of experience! As the Sewing Fairy says, 'Don't ditch it, fix it'. The first session will focus on a range of techniques, in the second feel free to bring along some mending and breathe new life into your much-loved items.

Places are still available, and you can register using the links above, or by coming in to the office at 59 Gloucester Street, Christchurch, between 9:30 am and 3:00 pm daily.
