Lyttelton Schools to Merge

The Merger Proposal: Details to Date

The Lyttelton schools re-organisation was announced on Monday February 18th. Courtesy of the Ministry of Education website we have been able to summarise the proposal.

The Ministry of Education proposes that Lyttelton West and Lyttelton Main schools are merged effective from 27 January 2014. Lyttelton Main School is the preferred site for the merged school.

The Ministries rationale for the proposed merger is:

- Both of the schools have low roles with limited potential for growth. According to Ministry of Education figures at March 2012 Lyttelton Main School had 113 pupils and Lyttelton West had 134.
- The two schools are within a kilometre of each other and it is asserted that both operate at under capacity.
- Lyttelton West is viewed as having site constraints. Being a terraced site on loess with possible under runners it is more difficult and costly to fully develop the site.

Speaking with Sue Walls, the Principal at Lyttelton Main School, the reality of the proposal for Lyttelton Schools is that a NEW merged school will be built on the site of Lyttelton Main. It will be designed to meet the needs of all students in this community now and into the future. Both Lyttelton Main and Lyttelton West as they are now will close eventually and this new school, name to be decided, will build on the strengths and qualities of both schools.

For mergers to proceed consultation from the Ministry was required. Consultation in 2012 highlighted that 62.1% of Lyttelton West parents did not support a merger. Objections included loss of unique culture, concerns about Lyttelton Main Site, travel concerns for learners, why a successful school should be closed, and dissatisfaction on the Ministry of Education decision making processes. Some parents did support the move stating that it would be good for the overall uniting of the education community and offer better learning opportunities for pupils.

At Lyttelton Main School most people were in favour of the merger and they noted that if the merger did happen they would like a working party and board that reflected the two schools equally. Their main concern related to lack of space at the current Lyttelton Main site. This concern has been addresses and the Ministry has identified more land to expand the Lyttelton Main School site. They are currently in discussions with the New Zealand Police. The proposal includes a brand new school for all children on the Lyttelton Main School site.

The proposed merger also has implications for Early Childhood Learning. Busy C's will be granted another two year lease on their existing site at Lyttelton West School but then it is proposed that land be designated for a new centre on the new school site at Lyttelton Main.

The Lyttelton schools have until the end of March to respond to this proposal. In the mean time the combined Boards met this week and another meeting is scheduled for next week. Ideas are being formulated to move forward positively. School communities and the wider community will be invited to another public meeting to discuss the way forward very shortly.

Community Champions

Meet: Frances James

Our tight knit harbor communities work incredibly well and part of that success is the people who selflessly give their time to make sure the various volunteer roles are filled. Frances James from Governors Bay is a key community figure in her special place.

Working quietly and efficiently from home, it is Frances who takes a lead role with the Governors Bay Community Association, and Governors Bay Civil Defence. Frances is also a “day time” volunteer for the Governors Bay Fire Brigade.

Today, Governors Bay has the wonderful gift of a full time community volunteer, dedicating her time to the wellbeing of her area.

Life experiences have shaped the place where Frances is today. Leaving New Zealand in her early twenties, and then marrying a geologist, she spent many years away from New Zealand. She talks about life in outback Australia - Tennant Creek, Meekathara and Southern Cross where they lived while husband Ron was involved in gold exploration. These isolated outback places gave her an affinity for small communities. “ I loved getting to know the people, it’s so much more personal, plus I learned you can make things happen” Frances exclaimed.

Frances relished in the freedom and flexibility that was offered. She was able to weave herself in and out of each place contributing skills to townships that complimented the needs of the communities. Frances is well and truly used to a life of adapting. “We also lived in the Solomon Islands for several years. I was the ‘party’ organizer there!” she said. Turns out this involved sourcing and organizing transport for 200 pigs for a village celebration!

After twenty two years of adventures in often isolated places she made a return trip to Christchurch to celebrate her fathers 70th birthday in 2006. She happened to look through a copy of the Realtor and properties in Governors Bay looked appealing. To give you an insight into Frances, she fell in love with the place. Next thing she dropped fliers into all the homes she liked in the area seeking offers for a private sale. Soon after she and husband moved to Governors Bay and from that time on Frances began adapting herself to her new home

Luckily for Governors Bay Frances puts her great energy and skills into this community. Currently in her role as the community leader for Civil Defence she and her team of fourteen local volunteers are ensuring that Governors Bay has emergency plans in place to help the community if needed.

Frances and the Civil Defence team are currently working with the school community to ensure that the school is emergency ready for the wider community if required. This involves designing their welfare centre, training for the various roles that a centre needs and just generally getting up to speed with how to deal with an emergency. There is a load of work involved and it requires much networking, co-ordination and general organization.

Frances work at the Fire Brigade also compliments her Civil Defence work. The brigade gives her an opportunity to meet more people, strengthen community connectivity and become physically stronger. Similarly the Community Association links her to another section of the Governors Bay Community. With her links to other harbour communities she can see possibilities for the future.

If you are interested in getting involved in the Governors Bay community contact Frances James 03 329 9560 or fjames@xtra.co.nz.

Governors Bay Civil Defence meets every third Wednesday 7.00pm at the Fire Station Governors Bay; and the Governors Bay Community Association meets the last Monday of every month at the Fire Station. Governors Bay Fire Brigade meet every Thursday evening at 7.00pm.

Diamond Harbour Writers Group

February Author: Brenda Walker

This month author Brenda Walker has been inspired by the Alison Erikson sculpture that featured at Stoddard Point in Diamond Harbour over the Summer season. Brenda says "It is interesting what sculpture draws out from one! For me, I see The Woman as 'archetypal' and wrote it for all the women in my life so it probably encompasses aspects of them all." Enjoy:

The Woman: Looking for Something That Will Last

She's a woman of conviction and she knows just what she wants you can see it in the way she lifts her head there's a boldness in her stature and no doubting in her stance she's determined, she's empowered and she's looking for her chance.

This woman's going somewhere we can see she's well prepared her staff a trusty stalwart by her side whatever may assail her or try to make her scared she'll face up to and engage with yet by trouble will not be snared.

She's known her times of sadness of trials and of test and she's weathered her emotions to come through with the best overcoming weariness gathering up her load now she's recommencing her long journey on the road.

Sure of what she truly values she's prepared to pay the price so second-best will not attract her nor would she ever risk her future on the rolling of a dice perseverance and true courage have exemplified her past now she looking out for something that will last.

Something that is precious of indisputable true worth something not easily possessed something born of gentleness encompassing deep mirth that will ultimately symbolize her merit something she can gift to her children something absolutely priceless to inherit.

Yes, she's a woman with a yearning and undeniable true wisdom born of deep compassion for her family and her kin she's set on going forward with a boldness in her spirit to seek her new tomorrows and find true peace within.

Brenda Walker, January 2013.

BREAKING NEWS

Lyttelton Community Association: Lyttelton Brothels Update

You will recall that the proposed brothels by-law presented last year included all of Lyttelton Town Centre as an area where commercial brothels would be permitted.

Many individuals, plus the Lyttelton Community Association made submissions on the by-law, resulting in the Christchurch City Council Brothels Panel removing Lyttelton from the permitted areas. Unfortunately, in December, the full council rejected this recommendation and instructed the Panel to examine Lyttelton again to discover suitable areas.

The panel hearing was held this afternoon. Paula Smith of the Lyttelton Mt Herbert Community Board, and Ken Maynard, representing the Lyttelton Community Association addressed the panel and covered pretty much the same ground as before, but this time emphasising that the population of school children would soon be increased due to the closure of West school.

I did remark that the panel seemed more interested in whether the council would be liable at law for disadvantaging would-be brothel proprietors, rather than dealing with the concerns of the residents. Paula indicated that perhaps the residents might take the council to court should they fail to consider the residents' interests properly.

The panel voted to recommend that Lyttelton be excluded from the areas where commercial brothels are permitted.

It remains to be seen whether the full council will accept the recommendation this time. We should have an opportunity to make a submission to full council when the matter is debated. No date for this is fixed.

No Brothels Recommended for Lyttelton

Hearing Panel Reconfirms Position

Hearings Panel today reconfirmed its recommendation to remove Lyttelton from proposed Brothels Bylaw

The Brothels Bylaw Hearings Panel today reconsidered the issue of an area where commercial brothels could set up business in Lyttelton. It decided to recommend to the Council that no commercial brothel area in Lyttelton should be provided for within the proposed Christchurch City Council Brothels (Location and Commercial Sexual Services Signage) Bylaw 2012.

Brothels Bylaw Hearing Panel Chairperson Helen Broughton says this bylaw has been a highly debated issue that has attracted a lot of feedback from the community, particularly from people concerned about the possibility of operator-run brothels in Lyttelton.

“The Council asked the Panel to take another look at a location within Lyttelton where operator-run brothels could set up business. The Panel, by a majority decision, has reconfirmed its earlier decision not to allow any areas for these brothels within Lyttelton in its recommendation to the Council. This recommendation does not include small owner-operator brothels [SOOBs].

“Having re-read the submissions on the possible inclusion of an area for brothels within the Lyttelton Town Centre Zone, hearing from local people and receiving new information about a possible school merger, I am confident with the Panel’s recommendation.

“All Councillors will be sent copies of the submissions,” she says. It is anticipated that the Council will further consider this issue at its 28 March 2013 meeting.

New Zealand Census

Tuesday 5 March 2013 | www.census.govt.nz

The census is the official count of how many people and dwellings there are in New Zealand. It takes a snapshot of the people in New Zealand and the places where we live. The last census was held in 2006. The census is the official count of how many people and dwellings there are in New Zealand. It takes a snapshot of the people in New Zealand and the places where we live. By law, Statistics New Zealand must hold a census once every five years, and everyone must fill in a form.

For the 2013 Census you will have the choice of completing your census forms online or on paper, in English or Māori. Filling your forms online is secure, quick, and easy. You need the reference number from your paper forms and your Internet Access Code. Collectors will deliver them to every household in New Zealand before census day. If all of the people in your household complete their forms online, a collector may not need to call back.

The Lyttelton Library informs us that you can use the library computers to complete your census forms online, anytime after you have receive your census forms. You just need to bring your census forms, including the envelope with the unique ID and Internet Access Code handed to you with your forms.

On Monday 4 March and Tuesday 5 March there will be a Census support person in the Lyttelton Library to give you help if needed, and one of the library's public computers will be a dedicated Census computer for these two days: people can use it only to access the Census site, and they will be able to take up to an hour to complete their forms online.

plenty to share

In Lyttelton so many residents grow vegetables; or have fruit trees literally dripping with produce. Plenty to Share is about sharing any excess produce with the community. So if your lemon tree is yellow with goodness and you can't keep up with making lemon curd, bring those surplus fruits down to the organisers, where every Saturday the swapping of produce is well underway in Lyttelton on the corner of London and Canterbury Street; and also in Diamond Harbour on a Saturday morning at the village centre. If there is something on the Plenty to Share table that you would like to take home, then you are warmly invited to do so.

Coffee Culture Extended Hours

Now Open Until 8.00pm on Fridays

Have you noticed that Coffee Culture have been trialling opening until 8.00pm on Friday nights? The girls tell us that this is due to big customer demand that they have trialled staying open later. So far it is proving to be reasonably popular. Keep it in mind if you're looking for a good excuse for coffee and dessert after work, or a later catch up with friends.

Employment Opportunity: Coffee Culture are looking for a full time barista/café assistant. If this sounds like you, please contact Samira 03 328 7080 or email lyttelton@coffeeculture.co.nz

Wunderbar: The Road That Wasn't There

Wednesday 6 to Thursday 7 March | 7.00pm One Hour Show $20.00

Fresh from the Edinburgh Fringe, Trick of the Light Theatre have crossed the globe to bring their dark New Zealand fairytale back to home soil. From award-winning Wellington playwright Ralph McCubbin Howell [The Engine Room – 2011], The Road That Wasn't There will play at the Wunderbar in Lyttelton on March 6 to 7. It is a curious tale from the shadowy corners of our history and the spaces between the lines on the map.

In New Zealand there are some 56,000 kilometres of paper roads – streets and towns that exist only on surveyors' maps. Or do they? A young woman strays from the beaten track and finds herself in a paper town. It seems a land of possibility, but she soon discovers that actions taken in the fictional world can have frighteningly real consequences.

The play is rooted in New Zealand folklore; from lost moa roaming the foothills, to faeries who drink moonshine out the back of Pyne Gould Guinness. Playwright Ralph McCubbin Howell [Outstanding New Playwright, Chapman Tripp 2011] says 'It's a story from the twitchy edges of children's literature - a dark world reminiscent of Neil Gaiman, Pan's Labyrinth, and the works of the late [great] Margaret Mahy.'

After playing to full houses over their premiere season at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe, the company is looking forward to bringing the show back to a home crowd. Their season at the Wunderbar is part of a nationwide tour that will take them from Auckland to Central Otago.

Director Hannah Smith says "The show is peppered with local references that went over the heads of audiences in Edinburgh. We are looking forward to performing the show to an audience who will get our jokes about Taylors Mistake."

Regulars of the New Zealand Fringe Festival in Wellington [March of the Meeklings - Best of the Fringe 2008, A Most Outrageous Humbug - Pick of the Fringe 2009, Who's Neat? You! - Best Theatre 2010], this is the first time the company have brought one of their shows to Christchurch. McCubbin Howell grew up in Canterbury, and has performed for several years as an improviser with The Court Jesters. He will be joined by Christchurch actress Elle Wootton, and Australian actor Oliver de Rohan. Tickets are available through dash tickets at www.dashtickets.co.nz/tour/335

LIFT Library Update

Recently I have received several donations of books from LIFT members:

Safe Food: Bacteria, Biotechnology and Bioterrorism

2004 Marion Nestle

Bioterrorism, genetically modified foods, food irradiation – Safe Food weighs in on all the hot topics. Nestle's arguments are consistently solid and persuasive. She reminds us that food safety is profoundly political, and forces us to ask: Who benefits? Who decides? I think it's interesting that I've received this just as there is a storm brewing about deceptive beef/horse meat production in the UK, coincidentally involving the Nestle food corporation, which comes in for some criticism in the book. The writer is a highly qualified scientist, not a crank.

And just for a change, we have some classic fiction, casting light on society:

Hey Boy!

1963 Jane and Bernie Hill

A chronicle of the Maori in picture and closely woven text. It illustrates the life of a large Maori family in the city, and the photographs are personal, charmingly natural and delightfully expressive. The descriptive text, told in the words of a little boy, is sympathetically and sincerely written.

In the Beginning

1975 Chaim Potok

This novel reverberates with the tumults and homely joys of Jewish family life from the last days of the innocent 1920's through the gathering shadows of the Depression, World War II, and the ultimate shock of the Holocaust.

A History of the University of Canterbury 1873-1973

1973 Gardner, Beardsley and Carter

This large book was published to commemorate the University's centennial. Readers, or their families, who attended the university in this period will find plenty of information and illustrations to bring back memories.

Human Problems in Technological Change: A Casebook

1967 ed. Edward H. Spicer

It's a pity more notice wasn't taken of this book earlier, so that mistakes made by corporations and governments and other missions for community development could have been avoided, and so strengthened the communities safely.

And today's quote:

We in America built more and more stores, to sell more and more stuff, made in more and more Chinese factories, powered by more and more coal, and all those sales produced more and more dollars, which China used to buy more and more Treasury bills, which allowed the Federal Reserve to extend more and more easy credit to more and more banks, consumers and businesses so that more and more Americans could purchase more and more homes, and all those sales drove home prices higher and higher, which made more and more money to buy more and more stuff and more and more Chinese factories powered by more and more coal which..... Port Hills Zoning Review Ongoing

The chief executive of the Canterbury Earthquake Recovery Authority Roger Sutton, says the team reviewing the Port Hills land zoning is making steady progress, but will not have the work completed by the end of February as hoped. Mr Sutton says the outcome of the review was initially delayed over the Christmas break with an expectation that it would be finalised by the end of this month.

However the work is still ongoing and won't be delivered to Cabinet to make recommendations on next week. "I personally called some of these residents before Christmas to let them know the process was not going to be completed on time, and they were very understanding. No-one – not the residents, or the review team – want the outcome to be anything other than correct."

"I am disappointed that we have to delay this outcome once again, but the rationale remains. If we did a half-baked job, we'd all be unhappy about that too. We are still some weeks away from finalising the work." Mr Sutton says the review takes into consideration the applications from over 100 Port Hills' property owners, but as with the flat land, also considers other boundary properties.

"It is important that all property owners in the Port Hills who are near the zone boundaries be aware that the review is looking at the entire area." He says owners of any property affected in the review will be contacted personally before any public announcement on the process is made.

EQC Land Damage Payouts

EQC are strongly advising customers who have received a cash settlement for land damage to use that money to have their land remediated ('repaired'/reinstated). Of course, in some land damage situations, remediation is impractical, for example, where land is lost over a cliff. However, for customers whose land can be remediated, it's very important to use the cash settlement to get that work done – for the following reasons:

- Some repairs may be necessary to make your home safe. For example retaining walls that support or protect your home.
- If you don't make repairs, your future insurance cover with EQC or a private insurer may be affected. In some circumstances, EQC can withhold cover until work is done, or decline to pay a claim.
- It may be difficult to sell your property in the future if the work hasn't been done.

If you have a mortgage, the EQC payout for land damage will go directly to your bank, or lender – rather than to you. Your bank or mortgagee may require you to use the settlement to make repairs.

CanCERN says this recent release of information forms part of the trickling out of information to prepare homeowners expectations regarding land settlements. The contradicting information between EQC and insurers is not unexpected, not helpful and definitely an area for some real leadership so that homeowners have one true understanding of what the land settlement is for and whether or not they actually need to do anything to their land before the home they live in is repaired or rebuilt.

Section 28 "Limitation" Notices

After cash settling a claim for landslip, flood or earthquake damage, the Earthquake Commission can sometimes limit insurance for the property involved.

- They do this by sending the owner a written notice advising of the limitation.
- They also arrange for a notice to be placed on the Certificate of Title for the property.

This 'limitation notice' remains in force until EQC satisfied that the repairs or reinstatement have been completed – at which time, the notice can be removed. Limitation notices are most likely to be placed following claims for damage from flooding, landslips, or earthquakes where there is a risk of similar damage occurring that can reasonably be avoided.

What is the effect of a limitation notice?

If your property has a limitation notice on its land title, EQC has the discretion to decline a claim that you put in for that property, where the claim relates to the damage that hasn't been fixed.

How does EQC go about issuing a limitation notice?

About three months after sending out the cash settlement, an EQC employee contacts the customer to ask about progress with their repairs or reinstatement.

- If EQC is satisfied that the repair work is progressing, then no further action is taken.
- If EQC are not satisfied that the repair work is progressing, they will notify the District Registrar of Land that a limitation notice should be applied to the land title.

How do I get a limitation notice removed from my land title?

A limitation notice remains in place until EQC applies to have the notice removed – even if the property is sold. To get a limitation notice removed from your title, you need to provide the Earthquake Commission with evidence that the repair or reinstatement works have been undertaken.

Your evidence may include:

- A copy of the Code Compliance Certificate [where a building consent was issued for the repair or reinstatement work]
- Copies of contractors' invoices that have been paid
- Photographic evidence, for example photographs of new bridges, culverts or retaining walls

When satisfied, EQC will notify the District Registrar of Land that the limitation notice should be removed. You'll be informed when this has been done.

Cancellation of Earthquake Cover

EQC can cancel Earthquake Coverage for a home, or land. When this happens, a cancellation notice is placed on the land title.

EQC considers issuing a cancellation notice when the cash settlement for the claim is the full amount allowed for, and the property isn't reinstated or replaced to EQC's satisfaction.

If a customer's Earthquake Cover is cancelled, they won't be able to claim from EQC – irrespective of the natural disaster. In addition, private insurers may refuse cover if Earthquake Cover isn't provided. Cancellation can be undone if EQC is satisfied that it is no longer appropriate.

Replacement -v- Sum Insured

Full Replacement Insurance No Longer Exists

Diana Clements, writing in the New Zealand Herald last week, had an article about the future of property insurance as companies go along the Sum Assured or Fixed Sum route. This is the future for all of us, and has very serious implications for everyone with a house insurance policy. The article is an important read as preparation for when you have to renew your insurance policy during the year.

A few points not evident in the article:

- There is no clarity yet about what the technical terms in the new policies will mean. There may be a wide difference between insurer and policy holder as to what the policy document will mean in practice. An ideal scenario for a plain English policy document approach.
- There is no certainty that insurance companies will accept the value of the agreed sum should the property be damaged or destroyed. Christchurch's post-earthquake experience shows that some insurers will endeavour to find points to re-interpret or dispute, to reduce the cost of the pay-outs they have to make.
- There is no certainty that the new policies will give claimants sufficient rights to protect their interests should a dispute arise.
- the article discusses the role of the Insurance and Savings Ombudsman in neutral and uncritical terms, missing the point that the ISO has been relatively ineffective in the Christchurch situation.

There are two previous post on this form of insurance, written by Avonside Blog:

Tenancy Protection Survey - Rising Rents in Canterbury

As many of us are aware, the rising cost of renting a home, and the standards of those homes, is a critical issue in Christchurch's rebuild. Tenants Protection Association (Christchurch) Inc. is undertaking a survey of the rising costs of residential rental properties in Christchurch and the Canterbury district post-earthquakes, and the effects these rising costs are having on tenants. The study will also investigate the quality and standards of rental housing.

The findings will be used to inform the community and to influence government agencies responsible for housing. Participants' privacy and confidentiality is guaranteed. They invite tenants to "Tell your story!!!"

If you want to participate in this survey please contact Tenants Protection Association on 03 379 2297 or text 027 379 2297 or drop in to the office at 113 Tuam Street to pick up or drop off a questionnaire. You can also access the survey on the website: www.tpa.org.nz or <http://tpa.org.nz/blog/tpa-rental-survey-2013>

TPA are also happy if you want to tell your story over the phone, or tell your story in person if that is easier for you. Please invite tenants in your communities to participate in this survey.

2013 Census – information for people in Canterbury

The census scheduled for March 2011 was called off following the 22 February Christchurch earthquake.

That means this year's census on Tuesday, 5 March 2013 is more important than ever.

Statistics New Zealand understands that your circumstances may have changed or be uncertain because of the earthquakes.

We want to make it as easy as possible for you to take part in the census.

This leaflet provides answers to questions you may have about how to fill in your census forms, online or on paper, and where to go to for more information.

Thank you for taking part in the 2013 Census.

Why does the census matter?

The census is the official count of people in New Zealand and the places where they live. The information you provide in the 2013 Census will help us build a picture of what Canterbury looks like now and will be used to make important decisions for the rebuild of the region.

Do you have to do it?

Yes. Everyone who is in New Zealand on census day must fill in a census form. Filling in census forms is required by law.

Filling in the forms

Brown dwelling form

Question 11: Rent paid by household

How should I answer if my rent is being paid by my insurance company?

The household does not pay rent if it is paid by your insurance company. Mark 'no' for question 11.

Questions 14 and 15: Number of rooms

Should I count rooms that are unusable due to earthquake damage?

If the unusable rooms will be repaired, count them towards your total number of rooms. If any of these rooms are bedrooms, please also include them in your bedrooms count.

If the unusable rooms will not be repaired, or you don't know whether they will be repaired, don't count them.

Blue individual form

Question 5: Usual address

How should I answer if my address has been affected by the Canterbury earthquakes?

Give the address you are currently living at, unless you are temporarily living somewhere and will be moving back to your earthquake-affected address (once your home has been repaired or rebuilt, for example). In that case, give that address you will be moving back to.

Question 24: Home ownership

What if I own a dwelling that I am not currently living in due to the Canterbury earthquakes?

Please answer this question for the dwelling at the address you gave in question 5 (your usual address), even if you own another dwelling that you are not currently living in.

Questions 30 and 31: Income

Should I include payments I have received as a result of the Canterbury earthquakes?

- Do not count lump sum insurance or EQC payments, but do include any interest you have earned on those payments in the last 12 months.
- Do not count one-off financial assistance payments (such as Red Cross payments).
- Include any regular income protection insurance payments under 'other sources of income'.
